Truman Expected To Seek Re-election On 'Prosperity' Platform

BY WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—President Truman stood out boldly today as the foremost Democratic candidate for the White House in 1948 and Washington political observers believed he will make the race on a "prosperity" platform.

At the same time and despite his smiling denial that he is a candidate, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York was viewed as an odds-on favorite for the Republican nomination.

Mr. Truman had a "no comment" reply at his news conference Wednesday when he was asked flatly if he would accept the 1948 Democratic nomination. But he parried the question with high good humor.

Dewey has unofficially served notice that he will wield influence in the national picture through the New York Republican delegation in congress. The governor yesterday conferred with 19 of New York's 29 Republican congressmen.

The Dewey organization already is far-flung and smoothly functioning. Despite the New York governor's reticence about his candidacy, the men and women working toward that end have placed him in a position dominating that of such other GOP hopefuls as Sen. Robert A. Taft, Sen. Arthur Vandenberg and Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota.

Mr. Truman gave strong indication at his pre-Christmas news conference that he is determined to convince the nation in the year ahead that he is an able executive who knows the road to prosperity.

The President presented an optimistic picture of the economic outlook for 1947, asserted that he does not admit the possibility of a recession, and expressed his belief that full employment can be maintained, barring strikes.

Political experts thought Mr. Truman's attitude tied in with the

FIRE DESTROYS HUGE ELEVATOR

World's Largest Burns At Minneapolis; Barley, Corn Consumed

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 19—The Union grain elevator, the world's largest and loaded with barley and corn, was destroyed early today by a spectacular fire in Minneapolis.

The flames, shooting 150 feet into the air, caused what fire department officials termed "one of the most costly conflagrations in the city's history." Preliminary estimates set the damages at approximately $5,000,000.

The elevator was owned by the Froedtert Grain and Malting Company, of Milwaukee.

Almost the entire Minneapolis fire fighting force was called into action, and a number of St. Paul companies responded to repeated alarms.

So intense was the heat escaping from the roof of the 80-foot elevator that the fire fighters were unable to venture too close. Firemen were endangered when the blaze intermittently sent steel siding sheets, ripped from the elevator, hurtling several hundred feet into the air.

The elevator, two city blocks long, still was smouldering in midmorning. Several fire companies continued to pour thousands of gallons of water on the ruins to keep the fire from spreading to adjoining elevators.

The wind-driven flames emitting from the wooden structure started several grass fires and ignited 12 railroad box cars nearby.

The firemen worked in near-zero weather.

Commercial airlines pilots as far away as La Crosse, Wis., and Fargo, N. D., reported to airports that the flames were visible.

No injuries were reported.

Froedtert Grain and Malting Company officials estimated that approximately three million bushels of barley and 50,000 bushels of corn were stored in the elevator.

E. C. Christl, manager of the Minneapolis branch of the company, said the barley was covered fully by insurance.

VFW CHIEF IN BLAST AT U. S. HOME PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Louis E. Starr, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, declared today that the "much-advertised veterans' housing program" is no more.

The veterans' leader predicted that most ex-GI's would have to depend on a "trickle-down process" for housing. He said more houses will be built under President Truman's new decontrol program than under the strict control system of former housing expediter Wilson Wyatt. He added:

"But, the bulk of new construction will go to non-veterans, with the veterans benefitting from increased vacancies of less expensive and less desirable units."

Truman Says Economic Aid To Be Held Up Until Unity Is Assured

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Warring Chinese factions were informed today that the United States will not change its policy of aggressive neutrality in China.

A lengthy restatement of U. S. policy toward China by President Truman made clear that economic aid will be withheld until a unified government, including Communists, has been formed.

But the presidential action also made clear that the United States does not intend to placate the Communists by withdrawing Gen. George C. Marshall, Mr. Truman's ambassadorial mediator.

The statement was said by Mr. Truman to be merely a reiteration of policy ennunciated a year ago when Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley resigned, denouncing state department handling of the Chinese situation.

Since then there have been repeated demands of many elements in the United States and abroad that the American government abandon the Chinese problem. Rumors have been circulated that Marshall was about to leave his job.

The President recited carefully the steps taken in the past year in relation to China. His statement pointed out the financial aid given to restore China's economy and transportation, assistance to the nationalist government in ridding China of Japanese, and Marshall's efforts to bring about a truce.

COAL OPERATORS SLATED TO TALK ABOUT LEWIS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Soft coal operators were scheduled to meet in Washington today to discuss the question of resuming wage negotiations with John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers.

The government stands ready to encourage a resumption of industry-union talks.

Federal coal mines administration officials, desirous of getting out of the coal business as quickly as possible, showed marked interest in today's pow-wow, but denied responsibility for convening the conference.

Balkan Plan Up To Russians

U. S. Urges UN Council Hold Up Action Until Report Of Inquiry Is Made

By International News Service

The United States proposal for an on-the-spot investigation of border fighting in the Balkans occupied the United Nations security council today with concurring nations waiting for a decision from Soviet Russia.

Herschel V. Johnson, U. S. representative, moved to get at the facts behind the charges Greece has made against Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania.

He urged the council to suspend judgment until the board of inquiry composed of representatives from the big five, Poland and Brazil, had returned with a verdict.

Great Britain approved the proposal and Brazil and Australia promised their support, but Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko called for a delay before a vote was taken.

Johnson, acting as chairman, offered no objection to continuing the issue until today. The four nations concerned, he said, had accepted the UN's jurisdiction over the case.

Atomic Plan Action Due

There was, meanwhile, no indication on how the USSR will vote on the United States plan for atomic energy control put forward by Bernard M. Baruch.

The atomic energy commission will meet again tomorrow when Baruch will demand a showdown on his formula, calling for rigid control and inspection by an international authority which is not subject to the veto of the big five.

The Moscow radio broadcast reports from Tehran that 600 pro-Russian Democrats have been murdered in Azerbaijan province in an aftermath to the recent unsuccessful revolt against the Iranian government.

CHURCHILL TO TRY TO OUST ATTLEE SETUP

LONDON, Dec. 19—Winston Churchill announced today he will attempt to unseat the laborite government of Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee late next month.

The conservative party leader and war-time premier gave notice to the house of commons that when parliament reassembles late in January he would ask time for debate on a vote of censure of the Attlee regime.

Herbert Morrison, lord president of the council, asked Churchill upon what grounds he would base his motion.

Churchill replied that his charges would include "tyranny, conceit and incompetence."

'Ringside Seat' To Study Cosmic Rays Is Planned

INYOKERN, Cal., Dec. 19—American scientists, probing cosmic ray secrets from heights of nearly eight miles, were planning today to climb even higher—to a "ringside seat" for mother nature's "Sunday punch."

In the very near future methodical recordings of cosmic showers will be taken by the soaring physicists almost 20 miles above sea level.

Some time after that, rocket flights of more than 100 miles into space, for a still closer view of the mighty cosmic spectacle are contemplated.

One of the top men of the present project, Dr. Carl D. Anderson, disclosed that cosmic ray measurements already have been taken at 100-mile level by instruments installed in the warheads of the German V-2 rockets shot up from the New Mexico desert.

The scientists' plan to go up higher than man ever has before risen was revealed by Col. Robert C. Walton, USMC. He represents the Navy's bureau of research in the joint Navy-Army upper atmosphere program—the project that seeks to wrest from cosmic radiation its unmatched atomic power.

To newsmen, who visited and viewed the Navy's giant new Mojave desert development base near Inyokern, Col. Watson said:

"Planned for next year is a series of observations from stratospheric balloons at altitudes of 100,000 feet."

The importance of this scarcely can be exaggerated. For that promethean titan known as the cosmic ray — the particles of which possess the deepest known power of penetration into the nucleus of an atom—gets stronger the higher up you go.

5 DIE, 50 HURT IN HOTEL FIRE

Fast Action By Firemen Is Credited For Holding Down Death Toll

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 19—Five men were killed and 50 others were injured early today when flames swept the first two floors of a South Philadelphia hotel.

Three of the injured were reported in critical condition.

Only fast and heroic work by firemen prevented the death toll from rising perhaps to the proportions of the recent Winecoff hotel disaster in Atlanta, Ga.

The blaze started on the first floor of the four story brick structure known as Abe's hotel at 10:30 p. m. last night. Heavy smoke swirled upward, dazing the 140 occupants. All were Negroes.

Fire Marshal George Gallagher announced after a preliminary investigation that the management apparently had complied with fire regulations. He said he found the exits in order and not blocked.

Police, who identified the hotel owner as Abraham A. Ell, of Atlantic City, N. J., said rooms in the place rented for 20 to 35 cents a night.

Mid-city hospitals and emergency police forces were strained to capacity as patrol cars rushed back and forth from the blazing building with dead and injured.

REP. SLAUGHTER MAY BE COUNSEL FOR PROBERS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Rep. Slaughter (D) Mo., who was "purged" by President Truman when he sought re-election, may return to the house next year as chief counsel for a Republican investigating committee.

It was learned today that Republicans, who will take over control of the 80th congress Jan. 3, are giving serious consideration to a proposal to place Slaughter in charge of a GOP investigation of surplus property disposal.

House Republican Leader Martin of Mass., admitted that the move had been suggested to him, but withheld comment on what action would be taken.

The Missouri Democrat now is chairman of the house surplus property committee. The committee, composed of three Democrats and two Republicans, goes out of existence Dec. 31. It was expected, however, that Rep. Rizley (R) Okla., ranking majority member, would recommend continuance of the investigation next year.

MAN DIES IN CRASH

WHITE ROCK, S. C., Dec. 19—One man was killed and five other persons injured, including three children, when a school bus and lumber truck collided today near White Rock.

More Toys Needed For Less Fortunate Kiddies

Accumulation of toys in the Kiwanis club's first annual campaign to supply Christmas playthings to less fortunate boys and girls was in full swing Thursday.

All persons wishing to donate toys are urged to bring or send them to the fire station, East Franklin street, not later than Sunday morning. The Kiwanians will enact the role of Santa Claus.

Using several trucks for that purpose the Kiwanians will distribute the toys on Christmas Day to the homes of the children in Circleville and throughout Pickaway county. Club members will assemble at the fire station Sunday afternoon to assort the toys in preparation for the Yuletide distribution.

It was emphasized that the playthings will be delivered only to homes of families whose names are on lists supplied to the Kiwanis club by the probate court and by the city and county health departments.

Anyone desiring to recommend children as recipients of the Christmas gifts, club officials said, must make such recommendation to the probate court or to the city or county health department rather than to Kiwanis club members.

The Kiwanians plan to make the collection and distribution of Christmas toys an annual event. Toys donated too late for distribution this year and those playthings donated during the coming year will be held for distribution on Christmas, 1947.

GOP PLANNING PROBE OF FOOD SENT OVERSEAS

Senators Wherry And Thomas Blast UNRRA And Present Distribution Plan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—The nation's foreign food policy today faced a raking over in the new congress.

Sen. Wherry (R) Neb., left for Nebraska preparing to write a stinging report to the senate on what he saw of UNRRA food distribution in a peep behind the Russian occupation lines in Austria.

Sen. Thomas (D) Okla., senate agriculture chairman and international food conference delegate, declared that in the future United States "must be the judge" of what she provides.

Wherry said he will set forth in a detailed report a charge that the Russian army is taking locally-available supplies in Austria and that UNRRA is replacing those supplies in order to feed the civilian population.

The Nebraska senator also will charge, he said, that the Russians use the UNRRA food to reward those she needs—as factory workers and as friends of Communism. He said:

"Old and disabled people don't get relief foods under Russian distribution. They go to people useful to Russia, as determined by a Soviet-appointed burgomeister on a basis of collaboration.

"There is no UNRRA inspection. I was told that an American inspector visited the area, at Wiener-Neustadt, about a year ago."

Wherry—who got only a few miles into the Soviet occupation zone, said he saw no livestock or tractors—which have been supplied to food-short areas, Wherry said:

"I saw no cows, no horses and no tractors.

"They go further behind the iron curtain."

Thomas, also expected to report to the senate on the world food parley, is equally critical of UNRRA. He said:

"American goods should be distributed bearing American labels. Recipients we are feeding in some foreign countries have no idea that we are furnishing their food."

Thomas and Wherry both said that foreign relief should be continued, but under American direction.

LAST WISH OF DAMON RUNYON IS FULFILLED

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—The last wish of Damon Runyon has been fulfilled today.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Airlines and a lifelong friend, flew over New York City and carried out Runyon's final instructions. Shortly before his death Runyon wrote a memorandum to his son, Damon, Jr., which said:

"I wish my ashes to be scattered over the island of Manhattan, the place that I have truly loved and that was so good to me." He asked that Captain Rickenbacker carry out his last wish.

It was done privately and quietly, as the noted reporter, columnist and sports writer had instructed. The plane took off from LaGuardia field, banked in tribute over Woodlawn cemetery where Runyon's first wife is buried, banked again over the Statue of Liberty and headed north over Manhattan.

As the plane reached the midtown skyscrapers, Capt. Rickenbacker tilted the urn containing Runyon's ashes through the pilot's cockpit window.

Damon, Jr., and his wife were aboard the plane.

PACKERS SIGN CONTRACT

Tells Terror Tale

SHOWN testifying in a Los Angeles court, attractive Mrs. Francis Harris (above) told a melodramatic story of a kidnap-poison plot involving two men and an allegedly jealous woman. For "the small sum of $500," said Mrs. Harris, the "kidnapers" were to have pushed her off a cliff. She said her abductors, held on felony charges, eventually told her of the plot. A woman, also facing trial, was said to have thought Mrs. Harris was associating with her husband.

U. S. SOLDIERS PLAYING SANTA

Americans Helping To Make German Children Happy At Christmas Time

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—American GI's will play Santa Claus to German children this Christmas.

The war department special services division said today that troops are authorized to take time out from training to help German youths make toys.

These playthings are to be given to German tots and teen-agers at special parties in 68 United States Army service clubs in Germany and three in Austria.

Dependents of military personnel were invited to help in special services Christmas projects, making toys and decorations and gift wrapping.

WAC units are participating, concentrating particularly on gifts for the smaller children.

Each soldier plans his toy project with the manual arts director and is responsible for a team of two to five German children who have the written consent of their parents to participate.

It was pointed out that selection of children is made in accordance with the directive on Army assistance to German youth which governs soldier participation in teaching them American games and sports.

The special services division furnishes tools and instructional information for the toy projects.

FRIGID WEATHER IS EXPECTED TO LEAVE FRIDAY

Frigid weather hung on in Ohio today, but forecasters said the cold would begin breaking tomorrow and that temperatures should be on the upgrade during the next two days.

The mercury plunged to as low as 7 degrees at Hayesville this morning, with the highest minimum reading being 17 at Port Clinton and Parkersburg, W. Va.

Throughout yesterday temperatures stayed in the 20's and managed to climb above freezing in only a few of the southernmost places, including Cincinnati and Chesapeake.

Ohio's snow belt—the narrow strip along Lake Erie east of Cleveland—was covered today with a white blanket ranging from two to 10 inches. Ashtabula had four inches, Perry six, and Conneaut 10.

Bilbo In Long Statement Says Gifts Presented Without Solicitation

POVERTY IS EMPHASIZED

Senator Says Testimony Has Showed Only That He Is 'Very Poor Man'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Sen. Bilbo (D) Miss., today denied any wrong-doing in his relations with war contractors and accused his former secretary of "wild, hazy, vicious and traitorous hallucinations" against him.

In a 41-page prepared defense statement before the senate war investigating committee, Bilbo asserted that the evidence shows "conclusively" that everything given him was "given voluntarily and without any solicitation on my part."

The only exception, Bilbo declared, was money he borrowed to "make a property settlement with my ex-wife."

Bilbo testified that he permitted war contractors to improve his estate with a lake, swimming pool and house painting job "because it was good business."

Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., interrupted Bilbo early in his statement to ask:

"Is it customary for a man to become indebted without solicitation on his part?"

Saved Him Money

Bilbo replied:

"I do not say it is. I'll say that in each instance that these gentlemen did work for me, they actually saved me money. I didn't have to accept their offers. I did because it was good business."

Bilbo said the evidence against him had shown only that:

"I am a very poor man and heavily involved in debt and that I received during all the periods that the investigation has covered but two Christmas gifts, one an automobile and the other living room furniture consisting of a sofa, three floor lamps and two table lamps."

Bilbo directed his major accusation against Edward P. Terry, his former secretary whom the

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Sen. Bilbo (D) Miss., explained today that the gift of a Cadillac car he received from Mike T. Morrissey at Christmas, 1941, was "just an old southern custom."

Bilbo told the senate war investigating committee that in Mississippi public officials always get cars and other gifts at Christmas time.

The senator indicated that the "old southern custom" also applied to the living room furniture he likewise received as a Christmas present.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The old off-year is rapidly drawing to a close . . . Winter arrives on the 22nd and Republican hopefuls are beginning to stir.

Harold Stassen is the first Barkis . . . he's not only willin', he's anxious.

Sen. Vandenberg used the reverse technique . . . He says, "I do not choose to run," beating even Harry Truman to the idea.

Democrats are getting powerful bashful. Chicago's Mayor Ed Kelly won't even say he'll run for mayor again for fear he might be mistaken for '48 material.

Kelly says, "I have never been a candidate but I don't say I won't be a candidate and I am not trying to be coy." I'd like to see him when he is trying to be coy.

Both parties are eyeing General Eisenhower but Ike got a piece of advice at the recent circus saints and sinners luncheon.

It was expected, however, that Rep. Rizley (R) Okla., ranking majority member, would recommend continuance of the investigation next year.

MAN DIES IN CRASH

WHITE ROCK, S. C., Dec. 19—One man was killed and five other persons injured, including three children, when a school bus and lumber truck collided today near White Rock.

More Toys Needed For Less Fortunate Kiddies

Accumulation of toys in the Kiwanis club's first annual campaign to supply Christmas playthings to less fortunate boys and girls was in full swing Thursday.

All persons wishing to donate toys are urged to bring or send them to the fire station, East Franklin street, not later than Sunday morning. The Kiwanians will enact the role of Santa Claus.

Using several trucks for that purpose the Kiwanians will distribute the toys on Christmas Day to the homes of the children in Circleville and throughout Pickaway county. Club members will assemble at the fire station Sunday afternoon to assort the toys in preparation for the Yuletide distribution.

It was emphasized that the playthings will be delivered only to homes of families whose names are on lists supplied to the Kiwanis club by the probate court and by the city and county health departments.

Anyone desiring to recommend children as recipients of the Christmas gifts, club officials said, must make such recommendation to the probate court or to the city or county health department rather than to Kiwanis club members.

The Kiwanians plan to make the collection and distribution of Christmas toys an annual event. Toys donated too late for distribution this year and those playthings donated during the coming year will be held for distribution on Christmas, 1947.

GOP PLANNING PROBE OF FOOD SENT OVERSEAS

Senators Wherry And Thomas Blast UNRRA And Present Distribution Plan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—The nation's foreign food policy today faced a raking over in the new congress.

Sen. Wherry (R) Neb., left for Nebraska preparing to write a stinging report to the senate on what he saw of UNRRA food distribution in a peep behind the Russian occupation lines in Austria.

Sen. Thomas (D) Okla., senate agriculture chairman and international food conference delegate, declared that in the future United States "must be the judge" of what she provides.

Wherry said he will set forth in a detailed report a charge that the Russian army is taking locally-available supplies in Austria and that UNRRA is replacing those supplies in order to feed the civilian population.

The Nebraska senator also will charge, he said, that the Russians use the UNRRA food to reward those she needs—as factory workers and as friends of Communism. He said:

"Old and disabled people don't get relief foods under Russian distribution. They go to people useful to Russia, as determined by a Soviet-appointed burgomeister on a basis of collaboration.

"There is no UNRRA inspection. I was told that an American inspector visited the area, at Wiener-Neustadt, about a year ago."

Wherry—who got only a few miles into the Soviet occupation zone, said he saw no livestock or tractors—which have been supplied to food-short areas, Wherry said:

"I saw no cows, no horses and no tractors.

"They go further behind the iron curtain."

Thomas, also expected to report to the senate on the world food parley, is equally critical of UNRRA. He said:

"American goods should be distributed bearing American labels. Recipients we are feeding in some foreign countries have no idea that we are furnishing their food."

Thomas and Wherry both said that foreign relief should be continued, but under American direction.

LAST WISH OF DAMON RUNYON IS FULFILLED

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—The last wish of Damon Runyon has been fulfilled today.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Airlines and a lifelong friend, flew over New York City and carried out Runyon's final instructions. Shortly before his death Runyon wrote a memorandum to his son, Damon, Jr., which said:

"I wish my ashes to be scattered over the island of Manhattan, the place that I have truly loved and that was so good to me." He asked that Captain Rickenbacker carry out his last wish.

It was done privately and quietly, as the noted reporter, columnist and sports writer had instructed. The plane took off from LaGuardia field, banked in tribute over Woodlawn cemetery where Runyon's first wife is buried, banked again over the Statue of Liberty and headed north over Manhattan.

As the plane reached the midtown skyscrapers, Capt. Rickenbacker tilted the urn containing Runyon's ashes through the pilot's cockpit window.

Damon, Jr., and his wife were aboard the plane.

PACKERS SIGN CONTRACT

CHICAGO, Dec. 19—The CIO-United Packinghouse workers today announced negotiations of a new contract with Armour and Co. All employes will receive a 7½-cent an hour wage increase, with the increases ranging as high as 23 cents an hour to eliminate geographical differentials.

Tells Terror Tale

SHOWN testifying in a Los Angeles court, attractive Mrs. Francis Harris (above) told a melodramatic story of a kidnappoison plot involving two men and an allegedly jealous woman. For "the small sum of $500," said Mrs. Harris, the "kidnapers" were to have pushed her off a cliff. She said her abductors, held on felony charges, eventually told her of the plot. A woman, also facing trial, was said to have thought Mrs. Harris was associating with her husband.

U. S. SOLDIERS PLAYING SANTA

Americans Helping To Make German Children Happy At Christmas Time

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—American GI's will play Santa Claus to German children this Christmas.

The war department special services division said today that troops are authorized to take time out from training to help German youths make toys.

These playthings are to be given to German tots and teen-agers at special parties in 68 United States Army service clubs in Germany and three in Austria.

Dependents of military personnel were invited to help in special services Christmas projects, making toys and decorations and gift wrapping.

WAC units are participating, concentrating particularly on gifts for the smaller children.

Each soldier plans his toy project with the manual arts director and is responsible for a team of two to five German children who have the written consent of their parents to participate.

It was pointed out that selection of children is made in accordance with the directive on Army assistance to German youth which governs soldier participation in teaching them American games and sports.

The special services division furnishes tools and instructional information for the toy projects.

FRIGID WEATHER IS EXPECTED TO LEAVE FRIDAY

Frigid weather hung on in Ohio today, but forecasters said the cold would begin breaking tomorrow and that temperatures should be on the upgrade during the next two days.

The mercury plunged to as low as 7 degrees at Hayesville this morning, with the highest minimum reading being 17 at Port Clinton and Parkersburg, W. Va.

Throughout yesterday temperatures stayed in the 20's and managed to climb above freezing in only a few of the southernmost places, including Cincinnati and Chesapeake.

Ohio's snow belt—the narrow strip along Lake Erie east of Cleveland—was covered today with a white blanket ranging from two to 10 inches. Ashtabula had four inches, Perry six, and Conneaut 10.

Bilbo In Long Statement Says Gifts Presented Without Solicitation

POVERTY IS EMPHASIZED

Senator Says Testimony Has Showed Only That He Is 'Very Poor Man'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Sen. Bilbo (D) Miss., today denied any wrong-doing in his relations with war contractors and accused his former secretary of "wild, hazy, vicious and traitorous hallucinations" against him.

In a 41-page prepared defense statement before the senate war investigating committee, Bilbo asserted that the evidence shows "conclusively" that everything given him was "given voluntarily and without any solicitation on my part."

The only exception, Bilbo declared, was money he borrowed to "make a property settlement with my ex-wife."

Bilbo testified that he permitted war contractors to improve his estate with a lake, swimming pool and house painting job "because it was good business."

Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., interrupted Bilbo early in his statement to ask:

"Is it customary for a man to become indebted without solicitation on his part?"

Saved Him Money

Bilbo replied:

"I do not say it is. I'll say that in each instance that these gentlemen did work for me, they actually saved me money. I didn't have to accept their offers. I did because it was good business."

Bilbo said the evidence against him had shown only that:

"I am a very poor man and heavily involved in debt and that I received during all the periods that the investigation has covered but two Christmas gifts, one an automobile and the other living room furniture consisting of a sofa, three floor lamps and two table lamps."

Bilbo directed his major accusation against Edward P. Terry, his former secretary whom the

NICE CUSTOM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Sen. Bilbo (D) Miss., explained today that the gift of a Cadillac car he received from Mike T. Morrissey at Christmas, 1941, was "just an old southern custom."

Bilbo told the senate war investigating committee that in Mississippi public officials always get cars and other gifts at Christmas time.

The senator indicated that the "old southern custom" also applied to the living room furniture he likewise received as a Christmas present.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

The old off-year is rapidly drawing to a close . . . Winter arrives on the 22nd and Republican hopefuls are beginning to stir.

Harold Stassen is the first Barkis . . . he's not only willin', he's anxious.

Sen. Vandenberg used the reverse technique . . . He says, "I do not choose to run," beating even Harry Truman to the idea.

Democrats are getting powerful bashful. Chicago's Mayor Ed Kelly won't even say he'll run for mayor again for fear he might be mistaken for '48 material.

Kelly says, "I have never been a candidate but I don't say I won't be a candidate and I am not trying to be coy." I'd like to see him when he is trying to be coy.

Both parties are eyeing General Eisenhower but Ike got a piece of advice at the recent circus saints and sinners luncheon.

A character impersonating General Grant walked up to Ike and said, "take my advice . . . don't"

committe moved to cite for contempt and perjury after a stormy session yesterday. The senator said in his statement:

"Christ had his Judas Iscariot; Caesar had his Brutus; George Washington had his Benedict Arnold, but I claim to have had the greatest traitor of them all in my trusted secretary."

Questioning Allowed

Bilbo asked that he be allowed to read his statement without interruption and answer questions later. But Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., and Sen. Mead (D) N. Y., insisted that Bilbo submit to interruptions as he proceeded with the statement.

After the committe's insistence Bilbo said:

"I shall be pleased to comply with the wishes of the committee."

Bilbo said "false charges" were levelled against him by Ross Collins, whom he defeated in this year's senatorial primary, and by Terry.

He termed Terry's testimony "wild and reckless, lying statements" as he indignantly denied the story that he received $1,500 to get a prescription or permit from the federal narcotics bureau for a dope addict.

Of that testimony Bilbo declared:

"It is a lie out of whole cloth and I want the world to know it."

Terry Blasted

Hitting hard at Terry, who testified bitingly against his former employer, Bilbo said his erstwhile secretary had been free with "traitorous hallucinations."

At the same time he charged that two pressure groups have been behind the campaign against him.

One he said, is an all-Negro group, and the other is composed of "Communist party members and quite a few other people identified with Communist front activities."

Bilbo declared that the communist groups "are behind the now famous 'oust Bilbo' organization." He denied specifically the complaint to the campaign investigating committee that he had violated his oath as a senator by inciting violence against Negroes in Mississippi. He said:

"Those groups know I am not guilty. They know I did not do any more than Perry Howard, the Negro national committeeman of the Republican party from Mississippi . . ."

Bilbo said the gift of the Cadillac car he received from Mike T. Morrissey on Christmas, 1941, was "just an old southern custom." Mississippi officials always get cars and other gifts, he declared.

Admits Helping Contractors

On the specific charges that he aided war contractors in obtaining government contracts, Bilbo asserted:

"To this charge I plead guilty and if I am to be condemned for being loyal to the constituents that it is my happy privilege to represent . . . then by the same token, every worthwhile senator and member of the house must likewise bear the burden of such condemnation."

Bilbo said he had done "no more than has been done by practically all of my colleagues in the senate and by nearly every member of the house . . . in urging consideration of constituents."

Concerning testimony that he caused transfer of the Jackson air base project from the Mobile to the Vicksburg engineering district, Bilbo retorted:

"I suppose I did."

Then he turned to the charge that he received $26,200 from F. T. Newton, one of the contractors on the $13,900,000 Keesler field job.

Spent $25,000 in Campaign

Bilbo said that the $25,000 was given him by Newton as a campaign contribution to help in the re-election of Wall Doxey, then running against Sen. Eastland (D) Miss.

Bilbo said he endorsed the four checks covering the amount and that Robert Gandy, one of a group working to promote Doxey, cashed the checks.

"I took charge of the money and began spending it for Wall Doxey's campaign," Bilbo explained. "I did the same with other contributions that had come to our group, but the Newton $25,000 was by far the largest amount that we received."

The senator said the remaining $1,200 of the $26,200 from Newton was a "personal loan and has been repaid."

Bilbo added that a $5,000 check to him from B. L. Knost, contractor, was another Doxey campaign contribution in 1942 and that the check "just passed through my hands" to Roberty Gandy, who also was in the special Bilbo committee supporting Doxey.

Another $1,200 he borrowed from Knost, Bilbo said, has been repaid, except for $450 which "I intend to and will pay."

Plans To Pay

Bilbo said, $6,000 he borrowed from Mike Morrissey—the lake builder and car donor—was secured by mortgage on 1,100 acres of land which Bilbo said he has sold for $26,000 to be paid as soon as the title is approved. The Morrissey loan will then be repaid, he said and the charges are "much ado about nothing."

Bilbo said he intends to repay Morrissey $3,671.92 — Morrissey's claimed "cost" for building the lake—"when funds are available."

Bilbo denied that he "profited" out of an arrangement whereby Morrissey managed his farm and claims to have lost $48,000 as reported in the contractor's income tax return.

He branded as "absolutely untrue" testimony that furniture for his "dream house No. 2" was paid for by war contractors. Terry, Bilbo charged, collected more than enough to pay for the $500 worth of furniture given him, but "evidently put the money in his pocket" because M. T. Reed another contractor, ultimately paid off a note Terry negotiated for the furniture deal.

With the exception of the furniture cited, Bilbo said, he bought and paid for furnishing dream house No. 2. He said:

"Most of it came from Sears, Roebuck and Co. and I paid for it on the installment plan."

Bilbo recited in detail where he bought other furniture and material for construction of the cottage on an island in the middle of the Morrissey-built lake.

He flatly denied charges that some of his personal expenses in Washington were defrayed by war contractors.

Denounces Church Charge

He bitterly denounced as "vile implications" a charge that he received funds for improving the Juniper Grove Baptist church but usd the money to build his own residence.

Bilbo said every cent he collected to build the parsonage for the church and beautify the grounds "has been spent on this worthy project."

The senator called Terry's testimony on another matter "the greatest act of betrayal of trust, faith, loyalty and confidence." He referred also to Terry's statement that Terry received $15,000 from Simon Lieberman, now dead, of New York, to spend for a candidate who would "defeat Bilbo."

Terry is to be cited for contempt for refusing to say who received the $15,000 repayment—Lieberman having died six months before the date on which Terry originally claimed he paid back the money.

Bilbo was called upon to answer a long record of accusations and testimony involving gifts from war contractors, political pressure and a "rumored affair" with his former pastor's wife.

Testimony on Bilbo's rumored "affair" with the wife of the former pastor of the Juniper Grove Baptist church was given reluctantly by the Rev. D. Wade Smith, present minister of the church on Bilbo's estate.

yokern naval ordance test station, has enabled the scientists to take heavy equipment—primarily the cloud chamber—up to altitudes hitherto unattained.

Dr. Robert B. Brode's cloud chamber, which with associated devices weighs about 1,000 pounds and has been installed aboard a B-29, can be taken aloft up to 40,000 feet. Recently, it took pictures of the "paths" of ever-present cosmic bombardments for five hours at an average altitude of 37,000 feet.

Dr. Anderson's cloud chamber weighs two and a half tons (5,000 pounds) and is being readied at Armitage field on the Inyokern naval tract for installation in a B-29. It, too, will soon soar to the 40,000 foot level.

Until the "upper atmosphere program" was launched, the highest elevation from which cosmic ray pictures were taken in the cloud chamber in this country was 14,000 feet—atop Pike's Peak. There Nobel prize-winner Anderson's chamber, built in 1930, made 10,000 photographs.

Russian physicists are reputed to have set up a laboratory atop central Asia's Pamir Imeau from which they are said to be studying cosmic rays at an elevation of more than 20,000 feet.

statement of James A. Farley, who called for a strong and unified party organization under competent leadership from the top down. Farley also noted:

"This nation has never voted an administration out of power when the country is prosperous."

Farley declared that the result in 1948 will "depend in large measure upon the leadership given by President Truman and the Democratic congressional leaders and the manner in which the Republican majorities in the senate and house perform."

The former national chairman said the Republicans "were at their peak" in the Nov. 5 election and the Truman administration, feeling the same way, is hopeful that in the months to come the party can regain lost ground.

Moreover, the Democrats view their opponents as dwelling at the moment in "a house divided." They point to the statement of Stassen that in his bid for the nomination he will seek to lead the GOP into the path of "true liberalism" and to the necessity of resolving such issues as the potential candidacies of Sen. Taft and his fellow Ohioan, Sen.-Elect John W. Bricker.

The Democrats frankly hope, therefore, that the strong Republicans, including Dewey, Taft, Vandenberg, Stassen, Bricker, Gov. Earl Warren of California and others, will "kill each other off," with the nomination going to a dark horse whom President Truman can defeat.

Bilbo In Long Statement Says Gifts Presented Without Solicitation

committe moved to cite for contempt and perjury after a stormy session yesterday. The senator said in his statement:

"Christ had his Judas Iscariot; Caesar had his Brutus; George Washington had his Benedict Arnold, but I claim to have had the greatest traitor of them all in my trusted secretary."

Questioning Allowed

Bilbo asked that he be allowed to read his statement without interruption and answer questions later. But Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., and Sen. Mead (D) N. Y., insisted that Bilbo submit to interruptions as he proceeded with the statement.

After the committe's insistence Bilbo said:

"I shall be pleased to comply with the wishes of the committee."

Bilbo said "false charges" were levelled against him by Ross Collins, whom he defeated in this year's senatorial primary, and by Terry.

He termed Terry's testimony "wild and reckless, lying statements" as he indignantly denied the story that he received $1,500 to get a prescription or permit from the federal narcotics bureau for a dope addict.

Of that testimony Bilbo declared:

"It is a lie out of whole cloth and I want the world to know it."

Terry Blasted

Hitting hard at Terry, who testified bitingly against his former employer, Bilbo said his erstwhile secretary had been free with "traitorous hallucinations."

At the same time he charged that two pressure groups have been behind the campaign against him.

One he said, is an all-Negro group, and the other is composed of "Communist party members and quite a few other people identified with Communist front activities."

Bilbo declared that the communist groups "are behind the now famous 'oust Bilbo' organization." He denied specifically the complaint to the campaign investigating committee that he had violated his oath as a senator by inciting violence against Negroes in Mississippi. He said:

"Those groups know I am not guilty. They know I did not do any more than Perry Howard, the Negro national committeeman of the Republican party from Mississippi . . ."

Bilbo said the gift of the Cadillac car he received from Mike T. Morrissey on Christmas, 1941, was "just an old southern custom." Mississippi officials always get cars and other gifts, he declared.

Admits Helping Contractors

On the specific charges that he aided war contractors in obtaining government contracts, Bilbo asserted:

"To this charge I plead guilty and if I am to be condemned for being loyal to the constituents that it is my happy privilege to represent . . . then by the same token, every worthwhile senator and member of the house must likewise bear the burden of such condemnation."

Bilbo said he had done "no more than has been done by practically all of my colleagues in the senate and by nearly every member of the house . . . in urging consideration of constituents."

Concerning testimony that he caused transfer of the Jackson air base project from the Mobile to the Vicksburg engineering district, Bilbo retorted:

"I suppose I did."

Then he turned to the charge that he received $26,200 from F. T. Newton, one of the contractors on the $13,900,000 Keesler field job.

Spent $25,000 in Campaign

Bilbo said that the $25,000 was given him by Newton as a campaign contribution to help in the re-election of Wall Doxey, then running against Sen. Eastland (D) Miss.

Bilbo said he endorsed the four checks covering the amount and that Robert Gandy, one of a group working to promote Doxey, cashed the checks.

"I took charge of the money and began spending it for Wall Doxey's campaign," Bilbo explained. "I did the same with other contributions that had come to our group, but the Newton $25,000 was by far the largest amount that we received."

The senator said the remaining $1,200 of the $26,200 from Newton was a "personal loan and has been repaid."

Bilbo added that a $5,000 check to him from B. L. Knost, contractor, was another Doxey campaign contribution in 1942 and that the check "just passed through my hands" to Roberty Gandy, who also was in the special Bilbo committee supporting Doxey.

Another $1,200 he borrowed from Knost, Bilbo said, has been repaid, except for $450 which "I intend to and will pay."

Plans To Pay

Bilbo said, $6,000 he borrowed from Mike Morrissey—the lake builder and car donor—was secured by mortgage on 1,100 acres of land which Bilbo said he has sold for $26,000 to be paid as soon as the title is approved. The Morrissey loan will then be repaid, he said and the charges are "much ado about nothing."

Bilbo said he intends to repay Morrissey $3,671.92 — Morrissey's claimed "cost" for building the lake—"when funds are available."

Bilbo denied that he "profited" out of an arrangement whereby Morrissey managed his farm and claims to have lost $48,000 as reported in the contractor's income tax return.

He branded as "absolutely untrue" testimony that furniture for his "dream house No. 2" was paid for by war contractors. Terry, Bilbo charged, collected more than enough to pay for the $500 worth of furniture given him, but "evidently put the money in his pocket" because M. T. Reed another contractor, ultimately paid off a note Terry negotiated for the furniture deal.

With the exception of the furniture cited, Bilbo said, he bought and paid for furnishing dream house No. 2. He said:

"Most of it came from Sears, Roebuck and Co. and I paid for it on the installment plan."

Bilbo recited in detail where he bought other furniture and material for construction of the cottage on an island in the middle of the Morrissey-built lake.

He flatly denied charges that some of his personal expenses in Washington were defrayed by war contractors.

Denounces Church Charge

He bitterly denounced as "vile implications" a charge that he received funds for improving the Juniper Grove Baptist church but usd the money to build his own residence.

Bilbo said every cent he collected to build the parsonage for the church and beautify the grounds "has been spent on this worthy project."

The senator called Terry's testimony on another matter "the greatest act of betrayal of trust, faith, loyalty and confidence." He referred also to Terry's statement that Terry received $15,000 from Simon Lieberman, now dead, of New York, to spend for a candidate who would "defeat Bilbo."

Terry is to be cited for contempt for refusing to say who received the $15,000 repayment—Lieberman having died six months before the date on which Terry originally claimed he paid back the money.

Bilbo was called upon to answer a long record of accusations and testimony involving gifts from war contractors, political pressure and a "rumored affair" with his former pastor's wife.

Testimony on Bilbo's rumored "affair" with the wife of the former pastor of the Juniper Grove Baptist church was given reluctantly by the Rev. D. Wade Smith, present minister of the church on Bilbo's estate.

'Ringside Seat' To Study Cosmic Rays Is Planned

yokern naval ordance test station, has enabled the scientists to take heavy equipment—primarily the cloud chamber—up to altitudes hitherto unattained.

Dr. Robert B. Brode's cloud chamber, which with associated devices weighs about 1,000 pounds and has been installed aboard a B-29, can be taken aloft up to 40,000 feet. Recently, it took pictures of the "paths" of ever-present cosmic bombardments for five hours at an average altitude of 37,000 feet.

Dr. Anderson's cloud chamber weighs two and a half tons (5,000 pounds) and is being readied at Armitage field on the Inyokern naval tract for installation in a B-29. It, too, will soon soar to the 40,000 foot level.

Until the "upper atmosphere program" was launched, the highest elevation from which cosmic ray pictures were taken in the cloud chamber in this country was 14,000 feet—atop Pike's Peak. There Nobel prize-winner Anderson's chamber, built in 1930, made 10,000 photographs.

Russian physicists are reputed to have set up a laboratory atop central Asia's Pamir Imeau from which they are said to be studying cosmic rays at an elevation of more than 20,000 feet.

TRUMAN SLATED TO RUN AGAIN

statement of James A. Farley, who called for a strong and unified party organization under competent leadership from the top down. Farley also noted:

"This nation has never voted an administration out of power when the country is prosperous."

Farley declared that the result in 1948 will "depend in large measure upon the leadership given by President Truman and the Democratic congressional leaders and the manner in which the Republican majorities in the senate and house perform."

The former national chairman said the Republicans "were at their peak" in the Nov. 5 election and the Truman administration, feeling the same way, is hopeful that in the months to come the party can regain lost ground.

Moreover, the Democrats view their opponents as dwelling at the moment in "a house divided." They point to the statement of Stassen that in his bid for the nomination he will seek to lead the GOP into the path of "true liberalism" and to the necessity of resolving such issues as the potential candidacies of Sen. Taft and his fellow Ohioan, Sen.-Elect John W. Bricker.

The Democrats frankly hope, therefore, that the strong Republicans, including Dewey, Taft, Vandenberg, Stassen, Bricker, Gov. Earl Warren of California and others, will "kill each other off," with the nomination going to a dark horse whom President Truman can defeat.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Deaths and Funerals

WILLIAM DRAKE

William Drake, 66, of 641 Washington avenue, Chillicothe, died unexpectedly at 4 p. m. Wednesday.

He was the son of John and Mary Kerns Drake. His wife, Alice Drake, died in 1940.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Brigner, Circleville, and Mrs. Mattie Carper, Chillicothe route 6; two brothers, Harry Drake, Columbus, and Turley Drake, Kingston.

Mr. Drake was a past commander of the Spanish-American War Veterans, Chillicothe, and a member of the chapter council of Masons at Springfield.

Funeral will be held at 1:30 p. m. Friday in the Hill funeral home, Kingston. The blue lodge Masonic order of Chillicothe will hold services.

HORACE M. NILES

Funeral services for Horace M. Niles, Columbus, a native of Circleville who died Monday at Grant hospital, Columbus, were to be conducted Thursday afternoon at the Shaw-Davis funeral home, Columbus. Burial was to be in a Columbus cemetery. Mr. Niles' death followed a three-month illness. He is survived by three sisters and three brothers.

BATAAN MARCH RECALLED AT TRIAL OF JAPS

TOKYO, Dec. 19—The story of tortures heaped upon American survivors of the Bataan death march after they were shipped to Formosa was related today at the Tokyo war crimes trial of 27 Japanese war leaders.

A British prosecutor told the international tribunal that the Americans were transported in 1944 from Manila to Formosa aboard transports still filthy from horse cargoes.

An affidavit submitted by an American survivor said that 600 men were crammed into the hold of one of the ships, forcing 400 of them to stand while 200 slept.

A dispatch from the Indian city quoted the Socialist, Jayprakash Narain, as saying:

"In the coming fight for freedom congressmen shall not fill the jails as they did formerly but must jail their enemies."

The British labor government's four billion dollar program for nationalizing the transportation system passed into the hands of a standing committee for further processing after passing the house of commons on a second reading.

The Italian government sped emergency food supplies into Naples in an effort to end a general strike which has paralyzed the city.

Workers and unemployed were reported demonstrating and looting shops in Salerno and Rome as the food shortage continued and prices sky-rocketed.

BRANCH COLLEGE COURSES OPEN TO VETERANS

New Classes To Be Formed At Ohio University Branch Units

ATHENS, O., Dec. 19—World War II veterans and recent high school graduates entering college as freshmen at mid-semester today were offered "a well-rounded schedule of courses" at Ohio University's three branches.

President John C. Baker, citing the wide variety of subjects available at Portsmouth, Chillicothe and Zanesville, assured prospective students they would "have an opportunity to begin their college careers even though it be at mid-year."

Students may register for courses in botany, English, speech, music, history, mathematics, physics, psychology, sociology and philosophy.

Having pioneered the setting up of branches in the state to help accommodate the heavy increase in enrollment caused by the post-war influx of veterans Ohio University will give priority next fall to off-campus students to enroll as sophomores on the main campus.

Director of Branches Albert C. Gubitz, saying 877 students are attending branch classes this semester, listed second term registration dates as follows: Jan. 23 at Chillicothe, Jan. 24 at Zanesville and Jan. 25 at Portsmouth.

At the same time he pointed out at least four "advantages often overlooked" at the off-campus schools: (1) small classes permitting individual instruction; (2) most classes meet once a week in the late afternoon or evening; (3) students can live at home and reduce expenses; and (4) part-time jobs readily available.

Branch classes are held from 3:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a. m. to noon Saturday in the high school building. The faculty is composed of 43 Ohio U. instructors and 57 off-campus teachers, including some chosen from business and industry.

80TH CONGRESS IS STREAMLINED BEFORE MEETING

Solons Will Find Changes Made Before They Get To Capital

BY RAYMOND WILCOVE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—When the 80th congress convenes Jan. 3, it will find that it has already been streamlined.

Senate and house parliamentarians revealed today that a little-known provision of the LaFollette-Monroney act makes the reorganization of congress effective Jan. 2, the day before the new session opens.

As a result, this will be the parliamentary picture when the Republicans take over control of congress:

1. The senate, being a continuing body, will automatically begin operating under the new rules which, among other things, reduces the number of regular committees from 33 to 15.

2. The house, not being a continuing body, must adopt a simple resolution making the rules of the 79th congress (as amended by the reorganization act) applicable to the 80th congress. House committees will be reduced from 48 to 19.

3. The senate and house military and naval affairs committees will be in existence no longer, having been merged into the committees on armed services.

4. Members of both houses will start off with an increase in salary, entitling them to $12,500 annually instead of the $10,000 they now received. In addition, each member will receive a $2,500 yearly tax-exempt expense allowance. The speaker of the house and the senate president will receive $20,000 instead of $15,000 a year.

Affirmative action would be needed in both houses to block or change the reorganization of congress.

Charles L. Watkins, senate parliamentarian, said any member wishing to restore the old rules or amend the reorganization act would have to offer a resolution which, by majority vote, could be adopted, rejected, or referred to committee for study.

Lewis Deschler, house parliamentarian, revealed that it would be difficult to block reorganization through restoration of the old rules unless the Republican majority agreed to it in advance. The house Republican steering committee has already gone on record, however, as favoring reorganization.

80TH CONGRESS IS STREAMLINED BEFORE MEETING

Solons Will Find Changes Made Before They Get To Capital

BY RAYMOND WILCOVE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—When the 80th congress convenes Jan. 3, it will find that it has already been streamlined.

Senate and house parliamentarians revealed today that a little-known provision of the LaFollette-Monroney act makes the reorganization of congress effective Jan. 2, the day before the new session opens.

As a result, this will be the parliamentary picture when the Republicans take over control of congress:

1. The senate, being a continuing body, will automatically begin operating under the new rules which, among other things, reduces the number of regular committees from 33 to 15.

2. The house, not being a continuing body, must adopt a simple resolution making the rules of the 79th congress (as amended by the reorganization act) applicable to the 80th congress. House committees will be reduced from 48 to 19.

3. The senate and house military and naval affairs committees will be in existence no longer, having been merged into the committees on armed services.

4. Members of both houses will start off with an increase in salary, entitling them to $12,500 annually instead of the $10,000 they now received. In addition, each member will receive a $2,500 yearly tax-exempt expense allowance. The speaker of the house and the senate president will receive $20,000 instead of $15,000 a year.

Affirmative action would be needed in both houses to block or change the reorganization of congress.

Charles L. Watkins, senate parliamentarian, said any member wishing to restore the old rules or amend the reorganization act would have to offer a resolution which, by majority vote, could be adopted, rejected, or referred to committee for study.

Lewis Deschler, house parliamentarian, revealed that it would be difficult to block reorganization through restoration of the old rules unless the Republican majority agreed to it in advance. The house Republican steering committee has already gone on record, however, as favoring reorganization.

DEADLINE FOR ARMY OFFICERS IS DECEMBER 31

Men Holding Commissions In Last War May Enter Regular Army

December 31 is the deadline for filing applications for officer appointments in the Regular Army, Capt. Thomas J. Madigan, Jr. of the Columbus Army recruiting station, announced today.

The recent authorization for increase in officer strength from 25,000 to 50,000 enables the Army to offer attractive careers to many desirable and experienced wartime officers whose expensive training otherwise would be lost to the Army when they return to civilian occupations, Capt. Madigan stated. gan stated.

Any man who served on active duty as a commissioned officer in the Army of the United States at any time between December 7, 1941 and December 31, 1946 is eligible for appointment as an officer in the Regular Army.

The necessary application blanks are available at the U. S. Army recruiting station, VFW building, Circleville where personnel will assist applicants in completing the forms.

The first of the new appointment lists will be announced on or before January 15, 1947 it was announced.

Ulysses S. Grant, 18th President of the United States, took so little interest in politics for many years that he voted for only one Presidential candidate before he was 45 years old When he was 46 he was elected President on the Republican ticket.

Attorney Sues Raft

A SUIT has been filed in Los Angeles by attorney Edward Raiden (above) charging that he was beaten by George Raft when he tried to recover gifts given to and taken back from Betty Doss, one of the actor's ex-girl friends. Raiden's complaint said that the film star had slugged and kicked him while he was held by a bodyguard. (International)

SEALS FOR HEALTH

THE little Christmas seals are making their appearance again. This year marks the 40th annual sale of the stickers for Christmas letters and packages, a fund-raising device by the National Tuberculosis Association, Inc., to help stamp out one of man's oldest diseases.

In every 100-seal sheet, this year, there is incorporated as a center block the photographs of three men and one woman, a tribute to those who helped to launch the seal idea. They are: Jacob Riis, Danish-born writer who told American readers about Denmark's inauguration of the seal in 1904; Emily Bissell, who, in 1907, raised several thousand dollars for a tuberculosis sanitarium in Delaware by selling red-cross decorated stickers; Leigh Mitchell Hodges, editorial writer and columnist on the old North American Review, Philadelphia, and E. A. Van Valkenburg, its editor whom Hodges persuaded to support the 1907 seal sale. Included in this galaxy well might have been Inar Hollboell, Danish postal clerk who in 1903 seems to have started the whole idea by selling letter stickers for an anti-tuberculosis campaign.

Those humanitarians started a fight that is far from won. More people died from tuberculosis in the last four years than were killed in the war. Tuberculosis still kills more people between 15 and 45 than any other disease. Almost 9,000 World War II veterans are at the moment in tuberculosis hospitals. No one is safe until everyone is safe, from this persisting illness.

Christmas is a strategic time for this health-fight carried on by the pleasant symbol of the seals.

INFLATION KITTEN

HIGHER prices can no more catch up with rising costs than a kitten can catch up with the tail it chases. Instead, the higher prices will make the costs rise still further. And the sooner workers learn that higher wages cause higher prices of everything they buy and that nothing but more work and better work, bringing more and better production, can possibly give them more buying power, the happier their wives will be.

Other people's families will be better off, too—all of them.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Behind the printed rumors that Mr. Byrnes might resign as state secretary (he denied them officially) is the feeling in some quite lofty quarters that his accomplishments in New York left some large vacant holes which are not invisible.

The entire Byrnes agreement plan is judged in these quarters to have turned into what might be a losing game. It is on a possibly failing basis, they say. A peace deal with Russia, to be successful, must be on a mutually genuine basis which would open up Russia as much as Russia has opened us. The Byrnes program falls short of that objective. It opens all the outside world to Russia, but does not open Russia to the world. Russia may fix standards for us and for the world, but the world can fix no standards for Russia. Communism may penetrate the entire world, but the world is not to penetrate Communism.

The validity of this feeling can best be understood in the action on disarmament—in which case Mr. Byrnes is not entirely defenseless; indeed the Republicans are equally if not more directly responsible as Chairman Austin is Republican.

If you will read the disarmament program of the general assembly of all the nations you will see it "recommends that the security council give prompt consideration" . . . that it "urges expeditious fulfillment" . . . that it recommends the council "expedite consideration" . . . and so on, in connection with every single point excepting one. The program obviously then is but a spur to the council of big five and selected smaller nations, and action must come from them, — including Russia, in the future.

Now the assembly laid down these suggestions:

That the council try to regulate and reduce arms through multilateral (many nations) treaties. This hardly suggests disarmament around the corner, but is rather made a question for negotiation.

More definite is the next point which says an "essential step" is to prohibit the atomic bomb. As a practical matter, we have the bomb; the rest of the world does not have it. To prohibit it now would prohibit our weapon, to the obvious advantage of the rest of the world, and particularly of the only threatening nation—Russia, which does not have atomic bombs.

Next point suggests withdrawal of troops from occupied enemy territory especially when the occupied nations do not want the troops. As a practical matter, Russia can control the wants of the enemy territory she has seized; but we may or not. It would be quite a simple procedure for Russia to have her satellites demand retention of Russian troops; while the infiltrated Communists agitate in our zones for withdrawal of ours. Conceivably then Russia could force withdrawal of our troops from Europe while hers stay.

But Byrnes has said we have 550,000

Diagnosis and Treatment of A Pain in Shoulder or Arm

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE FIRST thing the doctor thinks of when a patient consults him about persistent pain in the shoulder or arm, is the anatomy of the region.

In his mind's eye, he sees the great group of nerves, known as the brachial plexus, which passes downward from the spine to the shoulder and then to the arm. Mentally he traces the course within the neck, of the large and important subslavian artery. Then he thinks of the powerful muscle, called the scalenus anticus, which attaches the spine to the first rib.

If Muscle Contracts

He knows that if this muscle is over-contracted or rigid, it may raise the rib and thus cause pressure on nerve and artery. A dropped shoulder, due to injury or poor position, may cause similar crowding of these two highly-sensitive structures and with crowding there is sure to be pain—sometimes in the shoulder alone, but often extending down the arm to the forearm and hand.

The condition is known as the scalenus anticus syndrome. The pain varies from slight tingling to dull aching. There may be some numbness or even lack of sensation in the tissues. Sometimes the skin of the arm becomes pale or of a bluish color. The skin may also feel cold, and the pulse is weakened. The condition may be brought on by injuries to the shoulders, by infections affecting the joints in the upper part of the spine, or by inflammation of the muscles or connecting tissues.

Diagnosing the Disorder

As a rule, it is not difficult to make a diagnosis of this disorder. Pressure above the collar bone usually causes tenderness and pain which passes down into the arm. Pulling or pushing of the shoulder or turning the head to either side makes the pain worse. The pain is also increased when the patient looks over the affected shoulder and raises his chin.

However, there are a number of other conditions which may produce symptoms similar to those of the scalenus anticus syndrome. These include bursitis or inflammation of the sac containing fluid located around the shoulder joint. A disorder known as cervical rib, in which an extra rib is present, may also produce the same kind of symptoms. X-ray examination is helpful in determining which condition is present.

The treatment of scalenus anticus syndrome consists in the application of heat by means of infrared rays, or by diathermy, an electrical form of treatment which produces heat deep in the tissues. Wearing a sling to lift the shoulder is also helpful. Having the patient lie with his head braced against a thick pillow so that it does not turn toward the affected side will help to relax the scalenus anticus muscle. Operation may be necessary in a few instances.

"The Authority on Authorities"

OBJECT OF THE GAME

HAVING your side become the declarer—that is not the object of the game. But players of a certain type bid as if that were the main idea. They seem to resent their opponents getting into the bidding, not realizing that their doing so merely offers an option. It gives you a choice between trying to beat their contract and trying to make one of your own. In close questions, it is well to bear in mind that always the declarer must take a majority of the tricks to score, whereas, if the contract is two or more, the defense requires only a minority to record points.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♠
2 ♦	2 ♥	2 NT	3 ♥

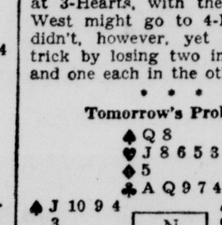

East opened this, quite soundly, because having slightly more than one-fourth of the total high card strength, he realized his side probably had a bare balance of power. Chances favored his side getting a part score and, if West happened to have good major suit distribution, a possibility for game.

West's bid happened to be somewhat shaded for a free bid over South's diamond overcall, especially at the range of two. But East could not know that. When North stuck in that 2-No Trumps, opportunity was knocking at East's door. He could have doubled it on general principles, or else just played against it. Had he done so, a heart opening, with proper action later, could have got his side three tricks in that suit, one in diamonds, one in spades and two in clubs—a total of seven, setting the contract two.

East should have realized that two original passers had very slight chance to score when his own partner could make a free bid. But he hopefully reached out at 3-Hearts, with the idea that West might go to 4-Hearts. He didn't, however, yet got set a trick by losing two in diamonds and one each in the other suits.

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, December 19

ALTHOUGH there may be obstacles, snags and difficult problems temporarily blocking the way, there is no intimation of finality in such predicament. There is every evidence of shrewd insight, quick and comprehensive analysis of the set-up and exceptional grasp of underlying factors, the mind being keen, penetrating with the impetus toward singularly astute and sagacious handling of difficulties. In this there should be desired help, with financial support for fresh vaulting over obstacles.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of impediment, frustration and stubborn obstacle, with lagging and static undercurrents. Yet the mentality is so shrewd, calculating and dependable, with its studied analysis of problems and hold-ups, that it should be able to cope with most disconcerting and disheartening situations. In such crises there is help from higher-ups, impressed by sound plans and persistent labor to be generous in their support. Work toward enduring goals.

A child born on this day has much capacity for overcoming obstacles and frustrations, by its exceptionally keen, shrewd and analytical mentality, attracting approbation from high places.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

MARY WAS in front of the house now, and Philip called her. She looked up, shading her eyes with her hands. "What, Philip?"

"Hadn't you better bring Clarabelle in before she gets a sunstroke?"

Mary wiped the moisture from her forehead and leaned over to look at her doll. "She looks all right."

"How about yourself?"

Slowly she turned the buggy up the walk and left it at the foot of the steps in the shade. "I AM kind of hot," she admitted when she reached the swing. "Move over, Philip."

"You're all in," Philip said, as she curled up beside him.

"I sure am. Children are an awful bother."

Philip winked at Anne. "What I think. Mary, Anne has asked you to go home with her for a visit. Would you like to?"

Mary twisted around and looked at Anne. "Where the castle is, and the spring house, and the well?"

"The very place."

"I guess so."

"Well, that's that," said Philip with a grimace. "Our gratitude is terrific. Likewise, our enthusiasm."

But he was feeling a great many things besides gratitude.

Philip had not been interested in Dr. Somers' suggestion that he should marry again. When he had thought of marriage, he had thought of falling in love; and he had neither wanted nor expected to be in love again as he had been with Sheila.

He admitted that the attraction Anne had for him was different, but, somehow, he wanted it to be different. He thought of what a companion she would be for him; what a mother she would be for Mary; and, with her understanding sympathy, what a home she would make for them both.

And he wondered what Mary would think of it. He debated all week whether he should not wait until after the visit to find out; but on Saturday afternoon he stopped by the house and asked her if she wanted to go with him on a call he was making in the country.

There was nothing indifferent in her acceptance of this invitation. "Where are we going?" she asked when they were on their way.

"Out near Englewood on the Colorado Springs road. What have you been doing all day?"

"Well, I helped Mr. Lane pull up bulbs and put them away down in the cellar. He says they sleep all winter like bears and he plants 'em again in the spring, and then I helped Mrs. Lane make doughnuts and gingerbread men with hats on, only they looked just like rabbits, and then we had lunch, and then I went to the store with Mrs. Lane, and then I picked the asters for Mr. Lane, and he's awful fussy and wants every single one of 'em cut, but I pulled some anyhow, and then I was just so tired I had to sit down and look at a book."

"I should think you would have been," Philip smiled when she finally stopped for breath. He gave her a little time before he asked another question.

"You like it at Mrs. Lane's, don't you?"

"Yes, only I get lonesome when everybody's gone all the time."

"Would you like it if you and Anne and I had a house to ourselves?"

"You and Anne and I live together?"

He nodded.

"But people don't live together unless they're married, because Mrs. Lane says so."

"Well, we could get married, couldn't we?"

"You and Anne get married?"

"Would you like that?" He looked at her face, puckered with thought, then turned his eyes to the road again.

"Anne would be my stepmother, wouldn't she?"

"Yes," he said, not having thought of the word before.

"My grandma said she hoped I'd never have a stepmother, but she supposed I would."

He was aware of a momentary sympathy for Mrs. Garrett's natural fears. "What did she say was wrong with them?" he asked, hoping she had not implanted any serious prejudice in Mary's mind.

Apparently she hadn't. "I don't remember," Mary said carelessly. "Philip, why can't WE have a little house—just you and me?"

"Just you and me." He remembered the first time she had said that, sitting on the bench in Mr. Lane's garden, swinging her little bare legs. "Just you and me." Had it better be that way?

"We'd have to have someone to take care of us," he said slowly.

"I'd take care of you, and you'd take care of me."

"I'm afraid it wouldn't work. Maybe we'd better stay where we are."

Mary broke the short silence. "I'd LIKE a little house—and a puppy," she said wistfully. "I like dogs better than cats, don't you?"

He nodded abstractedly. There wasn't much sense in this, he was thinking Mary didn't know whether she wanted Anne for a stepmother. How could she know? He should have painted a cheerful picture of a home which would have the things he knew she did want.

He turned off Broadway onto a hard dirt road. He had to keep his mind on Dr. Somers' description if he wanted to recognize the place. There that must be it ahead of him. A ditch ran along in front, and you drove over a little bridge; but you had to open a gate. It would be simpler to park outside. He stopped the car and turned off the ignition. As he opened the door Mary put her hand on his arm. He looked down into her eyes, wide and serious.

"Do you WANT to marry Anne?"

"Yes," he said, realizing for the first time how much.

"Well, if, if you really WANT to, I don't guess I care."

He could not have been more surprised. It had never occurred to him that she would consider what he wanted. He did not know that it was the first purely unselfish impulse she had ever had, but he suspected it. He gave her a hard squeeze and pretended to take a bite out of her ear. "You're a sweet little monkey. Keep it under your hat, will you?"

Anne lay on the old black leather couch on the side porch and looked out at her favorite walnut tree. Her mother, idle for once, sat near by. They could see Mary swinging from the sawed-off limb of an apple tree across the lawn.

"How I loved that limb," Anne murmured drowsily. "Mary's getting to be a regular little acrobat. Philip's going to be surprised."

Philip's name had slipped out before she thought, and now she had an uneasy feeling that her mother was watching her. Mary's constant references to Philip and Anne had obviously not been overlooked.

"You're interested in this Philip, aren't you?"

"We're thrown together a good deal, and we're very good friends," Anne answered frankly enough.

"And you really wanted to bring Mary for the pleasure you'd get from her company?"

Anne, who had already explained why she'd brought Mary, ignored her mother's bait.

Mrs. Bowman nodded significantly. "Well, all I can say is, if you want to be a stepmother, go ahead the way you're going. But personally, I'd prefer any other form of martrydom."

Mrs. Bowman wrote magazine stories and was, therefore, an authority on human relations. Anne laughed and accepted the challenge. "What's so terrible about being a stepmother?"

"If you don't take it for granted that it IS terrible, you're already too far gone to help."

"No, seriously, tell me. I might as well know the worst."

"Well, in the first place, you'd be jealous. A woman has enough cause for jealousy, especially if she marries a doctor, without having a child stuck under her nose at the start. Then you'd have something ready-made to quarrel over; you wouldn't have to wait for it to develop. If you were strict with her, her father wouldn't like it. If you weren't, she'd feel that you had no authority over her, and she'd walk over you. Then, when neither of you could do anything with her, he'd say, 'Why don't you make that child behave? Don't you even care enough about her for that?' Of course, you think Philip would be different, but I tell you, Anne, they're all alike."

"You'll have a chance to see what he's like when he comes after us Sunday," Anne said, smiling. She could count on her mother to produce all the conventional arguments for or against almost anything. She was clever enough, and observant, but she observed only what she was looking for. She had been quick to sense Anne's interest in Philip, but she would tie up with it too many loose strings. Anne would not even have put it past her to take it upon herself to warn Philip against giving his child a stepmother. Then she would feel that she had done her duty by them both, and wou'd be content to sit back and see her predictions borne out. Philip, Anne thought, would probably be amused His capacity for amusement where annoyance might have been expected, was, to her, one of his most endearing traits.

Assignment: America.....by Kenneth L. Dixon

WASHINGTON — "Do you swear that the testimony you are about to give. . .is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth?"

"I do," said every witness who has appeared before the senate inquiry into the war contract dealings of Senator Theodore G. Bilbo.

And now the committee conducting those hearings has sicked the justice department onto one witness with a perjury charge.

Which becomes the biggest laugh in Washington today!

It is not a question of whether the witness—Edward P. Terry, former secretary to the Mississippi senior senator—is or is not guilty of perjury.

It is simply this:

If failing to keep the aforementioned oath, with all its terms, constitutes perjury, then it is extremely doubtful if there are five people who have not perjured themselves during the Bilbo hearings. . .

Senator Ferguson, the Michigan Republican who has ramrodded most of the probe, said angrily at the time: "this is not the only man who has committed perjury in this hearing. . ."

Which was a masterpiece of understatement.

Even to cynical newsmen, the carelessness with which truth has been treated throughout the Bilbo hearings has become sickening.

War contractors, politicians and penny-ante business and professional men have glibly although unofficially admitted their lies (there is no other word) to reporters and idle spectators outside the caucus-room doors.

Moreover, they usually do it lightly—with a laugh. . .

If you are doubtful, consider the case of the clergyman who testified on one day that he knew "nothing about that. . . nothing about that" when queried concerning a former pastor's wife and the senator. He added that he never had "heard anyone say anything against" the senator.

But next day, the preacher testified that he personally had even passed along rumors of an alleged affair between Bilbo and the wife of the former pastor at the Juniper Grove church. . .

Do you need more evidence? It's easy to give, providing it's unofficial, of course—for the boys weren't born yesterday.

On the stand, one contractor swore solemnly that the senator never had asked him for a single dollar or donation. But riding down the same elevator with me a few hours later, he laughed ruefully to his friends and said:

"Migod, the guy dogs you to death for dough, and then makes you come up here and stick your neck out to testify that he never asked for a cent!"

You think that was unusual, or unlikely? Hah! As the pennyphrase puts it, e pluribus unum. He was one out of many who took the same light, querulous attitude about the whole proceedings.

Public servants, politicians, private employes or millionaire contractors, they took the same point of view. And the point is that they seemed to hold that the whole thing was highly humorous.

To them, it didn't appear to be important at all—unless they got caught in their own testimony, as the luckless preacher did.

Instead, it appeared to be a good game, in which the oath they had taken was merely one of the idle rules—to be considered seriously if they got caught in a cramp, but not to be noticed otherwise.

Everywhere you turned, you heard the same thing, if you want to consider it in terms of the oath they all had taken.

Some told the truth and nothing but the truth. But they didn't bother to tell the whole truth. They forgot, when convenient.

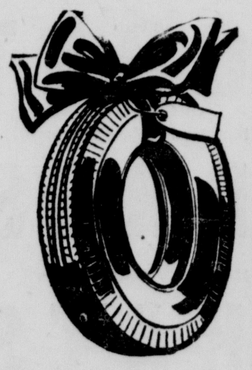

Some told the whole truth, but didn't confine themselves to the truth. They were quite willing to tell other stories which they knew were not true, but, they were convenient. . .

And there were many who (quite unofficially, of course), were willing to admit they hadn't even told the basic truth.

And they seemed to consider the whole thing a good joke.

So, if the justice department really wants to probe the practice of perjury, the Bilbo hearings should furnish a field day.

These include bursitis or inflammation of the sac containing fluid located around the shoulder joint. A disorder known as cervical rib, in which an extra rib is present, may also produce the same kind of symptoms. X-ray examination is helpful in determining which condition is present.

The treatment of scalenus anticus syndrome consists in the application of heat by means of infrared rays, or by diathermy, an electrical form of treatment which produces heat deep in the tissues. Wearing a sling to lift the shoulder is also helpful. Having the patient lie with his head braced against a thick pillow so that it does not turn toward the affected side will help to relax the scalenus anticus muscle. Operation may be necessary in a few instances.

"The Authority on Authorities"

OBJECT OF THE GAME

HAVING your side become the declarer—that is not the object of the game. But players of a certain type bid as if that were the main idea. They seem to resent their opponents getting into the bidding, not realizing that their doing so merely offers an option. It gives you a choice between trying to beat their contract and trying to make one of your own. In close questions, it is well to bear in mind that always the declarer must take a majority of the tricks to score, whereas, if the contract is two or more, the defense requires only a minority to record points.

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♠
2 ♦	2 ♥	2 NT	3 ♥

East opened this, quite soundly, because having slightly more than one-fourth of the total high card strength, he realized his side probably had a bare balance of power. Chances favored his side getting a part score and, if West happened to have good major suit distribution, a possibility for game.

West's bid happened to be somewhat shaded for a free bid over South's diamond overcall, especially at the range of two. But East could not know that. When North stuck in that 2-No Trumps, opportunity was knocking at East's door. He could have doubled it on general principles, or else just played against it. Had he done so, a heart opening, with proper action later, could have got his side three tricks in that suit, one in diamonds, one in spades and two in clubs—a total of seven, setting the contract two.

East should have realized that two original passers had very slight chance to score when his own partner could make a free bid. But he hopefully reached out at 3-Hearts, with the idea that West might go to 4-Hearts. He didn't, however, yet got set a trick by losing two in diamonds and one each in the other suits.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

MARY WAS in front of the house now, and Philip called her. She looked up, shading her eyes with her hands. "What, Philip?"

"Hadn't you better bring Clarabelle in before she gets a sunstroke?"

Mary wiped the moisture from her forehead and leaned over to look at her doll. "She looks all right."

"How about yourself?"

Slowly she turned the buggy up the walk and left it at the foot of the steps in the shade. "I AM kind of hot," she admitted when she reached the swing. "Move over, Philip."

"You're all in," Philip said, as she curled up beside him.

"I sure am. Children are an awful bother."

Philip winked at Anne. "What I think, Mary, Anne has asked you to go home with her for a visit. Would you like to?"

Mary twisted around and looked at Anne. "Where the castle is, and the spring house, and the well?"

"The very place."

"I guess so."

"Well, that's that," said Philip with a grimace. "Our gratitude is terrific. Likewise, our enthusiasm."

But he was feeling a great many things besides gratitude.

Philip had not been interested in Dr. Somers' suggestion that he should marry again. When he had thought of marriage, he had thought of falling in love; and he had neither wanted nor expected to be in love again as he had been with Sheila.

He admitted that the attraction Anne had for him was different, but, somehow, he wanted it to be different. He thought of what a companion she would be for him; what a mother she would be for Mary; and, with her understanding sympathy, what a home she would make for them both.

And he wondered what Mary would think of it. He debated all week whether he should not wait until after the visit to find out; but on Saturday afternoon he stopped by the house and asked her if she wanted to go with him on a call he was making in the country.

There was nothing indifferent in her acceptance of this invitation. "Where are we going?" she asked when they were on their way.

"Out near Englewood on the Colorado Springs road. What have you been doing all day?"

"Well, I helped Mr. Lane pull up bulbs and put them away down in the cellar. He says they sleep all winter like bears and he plants 'em again in the spring, and then I helped Mrs. Lane make doughnuts and gingerbread men with hats on, only they looked just like rabbits, and then we had lunch, and then I went to the store with Mrs. Lane, and then I picked the asters for Mr. Lane, and he's awful fussy and wants every single one of 'em cut, but I pulled some anyhow, and then I was just so tired I had to sit down and look at a book."

"I should think you would have been," Philip smiled when she finally stopped for breath. He gave her a little time before he asked another question.

"You like it at Mrs. Lane's, don't you?"

"Yes, only I get lonesome when everybody's gone all the time."

"Would you like it if you and Anne and I had a house to ourselves?"

"You and Anne and I live together?"

He nodded.

"But people don't live together unless they're married, because Mrs. Lane says so."

"Well, we could get married, couldn't we?"

"You and Anne get married?"

"Would you like that?" He looked at her face, puckered with thought, then turned his eyes to the road again.

"Anne would be my stepmother, wouldn't she?"

"Yes," he said, not having thought of the word before.

"My grandma said she hoped I'd never have a stepmother, but she supposed I would."

He was aware of a momentary sympathy for Mrs. Garrett's natural fears. "What did she say was wrong with them?" he asked, hoping she had not implanted any serious prejudice in Mary's mind.

Apparently she hadn't. "I don't remember," Mary said carelessly. "Philip, why can't WE have a little house—just you and me?"

"Just you and me." He remembered the first time she had said that, sitting on the bench in Mr. Lane's garden, swinging her little bare legs. "Just you and me." Had it better be that way?

"We'd have to have someone to take care of us," he said slowly.

"I'd take care of you, and you'd take care of me."

"I'm afraid it wouldn't work. Maybe we'd better stay where we are."

Mary broke the short silence. "I'd LIKE a little house—and a puppy," she said wistfully. "I like dogs better than cats, don't you?"

He nodded abstractedly. There wasn't much sense in this, he was thinking. Mary didn't know whether she wanted Anne for a stepmother. How could she know? He should have painted a cheerful picture of a home which would have the things he knew she did want.

He turned off Broadway onto a hard dirt road. He had to keep his mind on Dr. Somers' description if he wanted to recognize the place. There that must be it ahead of him. A ditch ran along in front, and you drove over a little bridge; but you had to open a gate. It would be simpler to park outside. He stopped the car and turned off the ignition. As he opened the door Mary put her hand on his arm. He looked down into her eyes, wide and serious.

"Do you WANT to marry Anne?"

"Yes," he said, realizing for the first time how much.

"Well, if, if you really WANT to, I don't guess I care."

He could not have been more surprised. It had never occurred to him that she would consider what he wanted. He did not know that it was the first purely unselfish impulse she had ever had, but he suspected it. He gave her a hard squeeze and pretended to take a bite out of her ear. "You're a sweet little monkey. Keep it under your hat, will you?"

Anne lay on the old black leather couch on the side porch and looked out at her favorite walnut tree. Her mother, idle for once, sat near by. They could see Mary swinging from the sawed-off limb of an apple tree across the lawn.

"How I loved that limb," Anne murmured drowsily. "Mary's getting to be a regular little acrobat. Philip's going to be surprised."

Philip's name had slipped out before she thought, and now she had an uneasy feeling that her mother was watching her. Mary's constant references to Philip and Anne had obviously not been overlooked.

"You're interested in this Philip, aren't you?"

"We're thrown together a good deal, and we're very good friends," Anne answered frankly enough.

"And you really wanted to bring Mary for the pleasure you'd get from her company?"

Anne, who had already explained why she'd brought Mary, ignored her mother's bait.

Mrs. Bowman nodded significantly. "Well, all I can say is, if you want to be a stepmother, go ahead the way you're going. But personally, I'd prefer any other form of martyrdom."

Mrs. Bowman wrote magazine stories and was, therefore, an authority on human relations. Anne laughed and accepted the challenge. "What's so terrible about being a stepmother?"

"If you don't take it for granted that it IS terrible, you're already too far gone to help."

"No, seriously, tell me. I might as well know the worst."

"Well, in the first place, you'd be jealous. A woman has enough cause for jealousy, especially if she marries a doctor, without having a child stuck under her nose at the start. Then you'd have something ready-made to quarrel over; you wouldn't have to wait for it to develop. If you were strict with her, her father wouldn't like it. If you weren't, she'd feel that you had no authority over her, and she'd walk over you. Then, when neither of you could do anything with her, he'd say, 'Why don't you make that child behave? Don't you even care enough about her for that?' Of course, you think Philip would be different, but I tell you, Anne, they're all alike."

"You'll have a chance to see what he's like when he comes after us Sunday," Anne said, smiling. She could count on her mother to produce all the conventional arguments for or against almost anything. She was clever enough, and observant, but she observed only what she was looking for. She had been quick to sense Anne's interest in Philip, but she would tie up with it too many loose strings. Anne would not even have put it past her to take it upon herself to warn Philip against giving his child a stepmother. Then she would feel that she had done her duty by them both, and wou'd be content to sit back and see her predictions borne out. Philip, Anne thought, would probably be amused. His capacity for amusement where annoyance might have been expected, was, to her, one of his most endearing traits.

For Thursday, December 19

ALTHOUGH there may be obstacles, snags and difficult problems temporarily blocking the way, there is no intimation of finality in such predicament. There is every evidence of shrewd insight, quick and comprehensive analysis of the set-up and exceptional grasp of underlying factors, the mind being keen, penetrating with the impetus toward singularly astute and sagacious handling of difficulties. In this there should be desired help, with financial support for fresh vaulting over obstacles.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of impediment, frustration and stubborn obstacle, with lagging and static undercurrents. Yet the mentality is so shrewd, calculating and dependable, with its studied analysis of problems and hold-ups, that it should be able to cope with most disconcerting and disheartening situations. In such crises there is help from higher-ups, impressed by sound plans and persistent labor to be generous in their support. Work toward enduring goals.

A child born on this day has much capacity for overcoming obstacles and frustrations, by its exceptionally keen, shrewd and analytical mentality, attracting approbation from high places.

Assignment: America.....by Kenneth L. Dixon

WASHINGTON — "Do you swear that the testimony you are about to give. . .is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth?"

"I do," said every witness who has appeared before the senate inquiry into the war contract dealings of Senator Theodore G. Bilbo.

And now the committee conducting those hearings has sicked the justice department onto one witness with a perjury charge.

Which becomes the biggest laugh in Washington today!

It is not a question of whether the witness—Edward P. Terry, former secretary to the Mississippi senior senator—is or is not guilty of perjury.

It is simply this:

If failing to keep the aforementioned oath, with all its terms, constitutes perjury, then it is extremely doubtful if there are five people who have not perjured themselves during the Bilbo hearings. . .

Senator Ferguson, the Michigan Republican who has ramrodded most of the probe, said angrily at the time: "this is not the only man who has committed perjury in this hearing. . ."

Which was a masterpiece of understatement.

Even to cynical newsmen, the carelessness with which truth has been treated throughout the Bilbo hearings has become sickening.

War contractors, politicians and penny-ante business and professional men have glibly although unofficially admitted their lies (there is no other word) to reporters and idle spectators outside the caucus-room doors.

Moreover, they usually do it lightly—with a laugh. . .

If you are doubtful, consider the case of the clergyman who testified on one day that he knew "nothing about that. . . nothing about that" when queried concerning a former pastor's wife and the senator. He added that he never had "heard anyone say anything against" the senator.

But next day, the preacher testified that he personally had even passed along rumors of an alleged affair between Bilbo and the wife of the former pastor at the Juniper Grove church. . .

Do you need more evidence? It's easy to give, providing it's unofficial, of course—for the boys weren't born yesterday.

On the stand, one contractor swore solemnly that the senator never had asked him for a single dollar or donation. But riding down the same elevator with me a few hours later, he laughed ruefully to his friends and said:

"Migod, the guy dogs you to death for dough, and then makes you come up here and stick your neck out to testify that he never asked for a cent!"

You think that was unusual, or unlikely? Hah! As the penny-phrase puts it, e pluribus unum. He was one out of many who took the same light, querulous attitude about the whole proceedings.

Public servants, politicians, private employes or millionaire contractors, they took the same point of view. And the point is that they seemed to hold that the whole thing was highly humorous.

To them, it didn't appear to be important at all—unless they got caught in their own testimony, as the luckless preacher did.

Instead, it appeared to be a good game, in which the oath they had taken was merely one of the idle rules—to be considered seriously if they got caught in a cramp, but not to be noticed otherwise.

Everywhere you turned, you heard the same thing, if you want to consider it in terms of the oath they all had taken.

Some told the truth and nothing but the truth. But they didn't bother to tell the whole truth. They forgot, when convenient.

Some told the whole truth, but didn't confine themselves to the truth. They were quite willing to tell other stories which they knew were not true, but, they were convenient. . .

And there were many who (quite unofficially, of course), were willing to admit they hadn't even told the basic truth.

And they seemed to consider the whole thing a good joke.

So, if the justice department really wants to probe the practice of perjury, the Bilbo hearings should furnish a field day.

Store Employes Guests At Christmas Parties

Murphy, Stiffler Clerks Honored At Events

Fifty employees of the G. C. Murphy Company were honored guests for a Christmas party held at the Pickaway Arms, Wednesday evening. Guests were seated at small tables, in the candle lighted dining room, which was decorated for the occasion in poinsettias, cedar and evergreens. Each table was centered with a red candle surrounded with holly. Miniature Santa Claus favors were at each place.

Miss Donna Reid, offered piano music as the guests entered, and during the dinner hour.

Miss Grace Swank and Mrs. Merl Lape, former employees of the store, Mrs. Donald Henkle and Mrs. J. L. Slaughter were guests at the affair.

Mr. Henkle, manager, presided during the meeting. He expressed deep appreciation to all the employees for their loyalty and service, both to the company and to himself. He said, "this was the first Christmas party for the employees, but that he hoped to make it an annual affair." Mr. Slaughter, assistant manager, spoke a few words of welcome to the guests.

Christmas bonuses were presented to employees. Miss Mary Allen was the first to receive the grand prize, and a bonus, for 15 years service.

Children's Party Held At EUB Church

One hundred thirty-five children, their mothers, teachers, workers and friends of the children's department of the First Evangelical United Brethren Church enjoyed a "Jolly Old Saint Nick" party in the Sunday school rooms of the church, Tuesday evening.

The program opened with Mrs. Porter Martin, teacher of the junior girl's class, directing the devotions, which consisted of carol singing, the St. Luke story of the birth of Christ and prayer.

Two visual education films, "The Child of Bethlehem" and "The Three Wise Men," were shown by Clarence Radcliffe, who served as reader and interpretor.

Arthur Leist showed three comic films, portraying the laughable antics of Mickey Mouse and Sailor Tindab.

Patty Nau presided at the piano and played "Santa Claus is Coming to Town" as an introduction for the appearance of Santa, who made a boisterous entrance much to the glee of the "kiddies." Santa made himself right at home among the group as he went about interviewing the children. He opened his toy bag and there was a present for each and every youngster. Next, jolly old St. Nick carried in a large basket of pop-corn balls. Then came Christmas Tree and Santa Claus cookies and candy for all. After telling the folks of the hard work ahead until Christmas, St. Nick bid all "Good-bye" until Christmas Eve. A happy "Goodbye" was shouted by the children as Santa retired.

Children of the cradle roll, primary and junior departments were present with their teacher and workers as follows: Miss Gladys Noggle, children's director; Mrs. Montford Kirkwood, Jr.; Mrs. Ezra Pritchard; Mrs. Robert Dick, Mrs. Porter Martin, Mrs. Ruby Brown, Miss Betty Jane May, Mrs. Hillis Hall, Mrs. Marvin Justice, Mrs. James Grant, Mrs. Dorothy Conley and Miss Jane Grubbs.

Children's Party Held At EUB Church

One hundred thirty-five children, their mothers, teachers, workers and friends of the children's department of the First Evangelical United Brethren Church enjoyed a "Jolly Old Saint Nick" party in the Sunday school rooms of the church, Tuesday evening.

The program opened with Mrs. Porter Martin, teacher of the junior girl's class, directing the devotions, which consisted of carol singing, the St. Luke story of the birth of Christ and prayer.

Two visual education films, "The Child of Bethlehem" and "The Three Wise Men," were shown by Clarence Radcliffe, who served as reader and interpretor.

Arthur Leist showed three comic films, portraying the laughable antics of Mickey Mouse and Sailor Tindab.

Patty Nau presided at the piano and played "Santa Claus is Coming to Town" as an introduction for the appearance of Santa, who made a boisterous entrance much to the glee of the "kiddies." Santa made himself right at home among the group as he went about interviewing the children. He opened his toy bag and there was a present for each and every youngster. Next, jolly old St. Nick carried in a large basket of pop-corn balls. Then came Christmas Tree and Santa Claus cookies and candy for all. After telling the folks of the hard work ahead until Christmas, St. Nick bid all "Good-bye" until Christmas Eve. A happy "Good-bye" was shouted by the children as Santa retired.

Children of the cradle roll, primary and junior departments were present with their teacher and workers as follows: Miss Gladys Noggle, children's director; Mrs. Montford Kirkwood, Jr.; Mrs. Ezra Pritchard; Mrs. Robert Dick, Mrs. Porter Martin, Mrs. Ruby Brown, Miss Betty Jane May, Mrs. Hillis Hall, Mrs. Marvin Justice, Mrs. James Grant, Mrs. Dorothy Conley and Miss Jane Grubbs.

FEDERAL AGENTS ENTER PROBE OF ATTEMPTED 'FIX'

Second Gambler Held In Case Involving Effort To Bribe Gridders

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—Federal agents entered today the investigation of the attempt to "fix" the championship football game between the New York Giants and the Chicago Bears.

Agents of the bureau of internal revenue were reported probing the New Jersey betting ring for which Alvin J. Paris is alleged to have been "front man."

Meanwhile Jerome Zapowitz, 28, described by police as a gambler was held in the Tombs prison in default of $10,000 bail as the newest figure to appear in the investigation.

Zapowitz was identified by police as one of the men Paris had talked to on the telephone regarding football and other bets. Police had tapped Paris' telephone lines. The cops still hope to question two other men who talked over Paris' tapped line.

Zapowitz made no statement to police and was held as a material witness.

Earlier yesterday Paris, who is under indictment on charges of attempting to bribe two Giant backfield stars with $3,500 each to "throw" the game to the Bears, was held in the Tombs and denied bail.

Sidney Paris, father of Alvin was to appear again today at the district attorney's office for further questioning. The elder Paris who once served a prison sentence for mail fraud submitted voluminous records yesterday to the district attorney, Frank S. Hogan.

Police also were interested in a "black book" found in Alvin Paris' headquarters. It contained the names of numerous Broadway show girls. Police said there was no evidence so far that any of the show girls were involved in the case. They pointed out that Paris had a wide acquaintance among show people.

HUNT FOR YULE GIFTS ENDS IN TRAGEDY

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 19—Eleven-year-old Emory Grambo could believe today that Santa Claus doesn't visit presents on snooping boys.

Emory searched an upstairs closet in his Columbus home. He struck a match.

Emory found the presents all right, but clothing in the closet caught fire.

Damage to the home was estimated at $100. Lost in addition to the clothing were the presents.

JUDGE WILLIAMS FUNERAL TO BE HELD ON MONDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 19—Funeral services will be held in Sandusky Monday afternoon for Judge Roy H. Williams of the Ohio supreme court. Burial will be in the Oakland cemetery in that city.

Judge Williams, 72, an Ohio jurist for 31 years, died yesterday of a heart attack 10 minutes after he was admitted to Grant hospital, Columbus.

He had been in poor health during the past few years, but had continued to serve on the bench.

His six-year-term on the court extended to January, 1949. Gov. Lausche indicated he would appoint a successor before retiring from office Jan. 13.

FEDERAL AGENTS ENTER PROBE OF ATTEMPTED 'FIX'

Second Gambler Held In Case Involving Effort To Bribe Gridders

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—Federal agents entered today the investigation of the attempt to "fix" the championship football game between the New York Giants and the Chicago Bears.

Agents of the bureau of internal revenue were reported probing the New Jersey betting ring for which Alvin J. Paris is alleged to have been "front man."

Meanwhile Jerome Zapowitz, 28, described by police as a gambler was held in the Tombs prison in default of $10,000 bail as the newest figure to appear in the investigation.

Zapowitz was identified by police as one of the men Paris had talked to on the telephone regarding football and other bets. Police had tapped Paris' telephone lines. The cops still hope to question two other men who talked over Paris' tapped line.

Zapowitz made no statement to police and was held as a material witness.

Earlier yesterday Paris, who is under indictment on charges of attempting to bribe two Giant backfield stars with $3,500 each to "throw" the game to the Bears, was held in the Tombs and denied bail.

Sidney Paris, father of Alvin was to appear again today at the district attorney's office for further questioning. The elder Paris who once served a prison sentence for mail fraud submitted voluminous records yesterday to the district attorney, Frank S. Hogan.

Police also were interested in a "black book" found in Alvin Paris' headquarters. It contained the names of numerous Broadway show girls. Police said there was no evidence so far that any of the show girls were involved in the case. They pointed out that Paris had a wide acquaintance among show people.

HUNT FOR YULE GIFTS ENDS IN TRAGEDY

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 19—Eleven-year-old Emory Grambo could believe today that Santa Claus doesn't visit presents on snooping boys.

Emory searched an upstairs closet in his Columbus home. He struck a match.

Emory found the presents all right, but clothing in the closet caught fire.

Damage to the home was estimated at $100. Lost in addition to the clothing were the presents.

JUDGE WILLIAMS FUNERAL TO BE HELD ON MONDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 19—Funeral services will be held in Sandusky Monday afternoon for Judge Roy H. Williams of the Ohio supreme court. Burial will be in the Oakland cemetery in that city.

Judge Williams, 72, an Ohio jurist for 31 years, died yesterday of a heart attack 10 minutes after he was admitted to Grant hospital, Columbus.

He had been in poor health during the past few years, but had continued to serve on the bench.

His six-year-term on the court extended to January, 1949. Gov. Lausche indicated he would appoint a successor before retiring from office Jan. 13.

EYES ARE PRICELESS

...Light is Cheap!

Eyestrain begins when children are even younger than those in this picture. And it persists throughout life, largely because we are repeatedly asking our eyes to perform difficult tasks under poor light.

Help protect your family's eyesight. See that they have plenty of good light, especially when they read, sew, study or play games.

Begin by filling empty sockets and replacing burned-out or blackened bulbs. Get a fresh supply of good lamp bulbs today... and be sure to include some of the larger, sight-saving sizes. Good light and good bulbs cost less than ever before.

OHIO GRANGERS CLOSE ANNUAL STATE MEETING

Anderson Predicts Slump In Farm Prices By Next Fall; Officers Re-Elected

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 19—Ohio State Grangers attended final sessions of their three-day annual convention in Columbus today after hearing U. S. Agriculture Secretary Anderson predict a 15 to 25 per cent slump in farm prices next Fall.

The site of the 1947 convention and a report of the secretary were scheduled for the last general session of the gathering.

Joseph Fichter continued to preside over the meetings as re-elected state Grange master. The re-election of Fichter and other officers preceded the annual banquet at which Anderson and Governor-Elect Thomas J. Herbert were the principal speakers.

In his banquet address Anderson said:

"Farmers realize that prices of their own products can go too high for their own good. Agriculture is on a sound basis and the efficient farmer should be able to continue to make a good living.

"Your own knowledge of the situation will tell you that you are in a better position to make post-war adjustments than the farmers of this nation were in 1919."

Herbert spoke only briefly. He praise the Grange as a "great institution in the development of agriculture in Ohio."

The U. S. secretary disclosed at a press conference that the department of agriculture is spending millions of dollars in research to develop new markets.

He said:

"This is a time for forward looking—a time to work for maximum consumption with a price level that will still provide fair returns to those involved in production and distribution.

"During World War I and the period immediately following . . . we ploughed up the prairies and brought into production marginal land that plagued us later . . . This time, with only a small increase in cultivated acreage . . . agriculture production was increased by a third. Production was built up chiefly through greater efficiency and these new efficiencies in production are going to be important in price adjustments that follow the abnormally high wartime levels."

Other officers re-elected with Fichter included:

John P. Kelser, Medina, overseer; C. C. Linerode, Canton, lecturer; Byron Frederick, Copley, Steward; Guy E. Johnson, Springfield, assistant steward; the Rev. Russell Hoy, Coshocton, chaplain; W. C. Carl, Columbus, treasurer; John Cunningham, Mt. Vernon, secretary; H. A. Atwood, Garrettsville, gatekeeper; Mrs. Grace Hutchinson, Xenia, Ceres; Mrs. Ossie Humphrey, Ft. Jennings, Flora, and Mrs. Pauline Hughes, Zanesville, Pomona.

Crickets are caged for their song in some regions. Cricket fighting is a favorite sport in China.

BULLDOGS WIN BY 39-29 OVER WILLIAMSPORT 5

Overflow Crowd Sees County League Battle In New Holland Gym

New Holland remained on top of the Pickaway county basketball league Thursday as the result of a 39-29 victory over Williamsport Wednesday night.

An overflow crowd of more than 500 fans jammed the New Holland gym for the game. An hour before the game started standing room was at a premium.

The game was close and hard-fought all the way with the host team winning out in the last half. New Holland took a 6-0 lead as the game opened and was on top 10-7 at the end of the first period. At the half Williamsport was behind one point, 14-13. By the end of the third period New Holland was leading 25-19.

Williamsport stopped the leading New Holland scorer, Jack Doyle, but big Jim McCown got loose for 16 points. Keller and Picklesimer led Williamsport with 12 and 11 points.

New Holland reserves also won, defeating the visiting reserves 24-16. Vincent had 10 points and Dennis 7 for New Holland and Stonerock was high with 6 for Williamsport.

During the halftime intermission the crowd joined in the singing of Christmas carols, led by the cheer-leaders of both schools.

Friday night three county league games are scheduled.

"Dads' Night" will be observed at Jackson when the school entertains Washington. Fathers of Jackson players will be introduced at the half.

Ashville goes to Atlanta and Walnut and Monroe tangle in other games.

GEN. TAYLOR URGES CLEANING UP ATHLETICS

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, superintendent of the U. S. military academy, has pulled the pin on a hand grenade and thrown it with what should be frightening accuracy among the operators of football foundaries.

He was on the record today with a three-point intercollegiate housecleaning program and the assertion that he has noted "more recruiting by colleges to attract athletes this year than ever before."

Speaking before the eastern college athletic conference, General Taylor suggested that (1) college president be made directly responsible for their athletic programs; (2) make these presidents certify that their athletes are bonafide students; (3) open college books to inspection for the purpose of showing how athletic receipts are being spent.

General Taylor said he also was startled to find that the professional promoters had the "temerity to compete with Uncle Sam for the services of Glenn Davis."

He asked whether young men went to West Point to become officers in the armed forces of their country or to become football players for promotors who are in the business for what they can get out of it.

In this latter connection the general added:

"I've noted this influence of profession leagues on college players and noted that the college athlete is often a pro in thought if not actually because he intends to make athletics his career and has his mind on play rather than studies."

He also said he had noted with amazement that sometimes "the student body hires and fires the coaches."

TIGERS WANT VICTORY FRIDAY

Blue Lions Of Washington To Be Tough Foe At Roll And Bowl

A Christmas present for Coach John Daugherty and Circleville basketball fans in the form of a South Central Ohio league victory was the aim of CHS Tigers Thursday as they wound up practice for the game Friday night with Washington C. H.

At Roll and Bowl the Tigers will be facing one of the best teams they have met this season. The Blue Lions hold a win over Hillsboro and lost by only four points to Chillicothe last week in a slow 20-16 contest.

Coach Daugherty is still uncertain on a starting lineup and will announce his starters at game time Friday. Regulars who have been getting into games so far will be used, with starting positions depending on what the boys show in pre-game warmups.

Reserve teams of the two schools meet at 7:15 p. m. with the varsity contest slated to follow immediately.

PHIL GORDON IS HIGH SCORER IN BOWLING LEAGUE

Phil Gordon scored a 237 game and 563 high series in the Wednesday night bowling league at Roll and Bowl.

PROS WIN OVER KOMEDY KINGS

Blue Ribbon Defeats Allen's Pharmacy Team In Prelim Of Pro Card Here

A small crowd saw Columbus Pros win 43-34 over the Komedy Kings Wednesday night in Roll and Bowl.

Blue Ribbon won over Chillicothe Allen's Pharmacy in an interesting preliminary by a score of 50-41.

"Circus Eddie" Hamman put on an interesting show before and during the pro game. His antics as he went through pepper practice and other stunts pleased the crowd.

In the game itself "Squint" Phares led the scoring with 18 points. Copeland had 15 for the "Kings".

Blue Ribbon trailed until the third period in the prelim. The visitors were on top 14-13 the first quarter, 24-23 at the half. Blue Ribbon led 36-34 at the end of three quarters and "turned" on the last period.

Leon Sims led Blue Ribbon with 14 points. Harold Stout had 17 for Chillicothe.

DEMPSEY RATES SHEPPARD NEXT TO JOE LOUIS

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—A proposed heavyweight title fight next Summer at Baltimore between champion Joe Louis and Curtis Sheppard received a nod from Jack Dempsey today when he ranked Sheppard just behind Louis in his annual ratings.

Dempsey, who is said to have slightly more than a rooting interest in Sheppard, picked the so-called Baltimore hatchet man ahead of Joey Maxim, Billy Conn, Elmer Ray, Joe Baksi, Tami Mauriello, Jersey Joe Wolcott, Pat Valentino, Bruce Woodcock and Lee Q. Murray in that order.

A delegation from Baltimore called upon Mike Jacobs shortly before the promoter was taken ill recently and received assurances that efforts would be made to close a fight between Louis and the Baltimore negro.

Dempsey's ratings, appearing in the current issue of Ringside Reporter, New York boxing publication, covered all divisions and in general ran true to the ratings of other experts.

RED SOX TOP FIELDERS IN AL

Rudy York and Bobby Doerr Set Pace For Champions Of Junior Loop

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—You'd never suspect it from the way the club went to pieces against the St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series, but the Boston Red Sox led the American League in fielding last season.

The veteran Rudy York at first base and Bobby Doerr at second set the pace at their positions as the Sox compiled a team average of .977 to top New York and Cleveland by two points.

The American League record for all teams through an entire season also was equalled during the past season with an overall mark of .973.

Boston's pitching and power overshadowed its fielding in the headlines as the club spread-eagled the field in the pennant races, but release of the official figures today show the vital part York, Doerr and the rest of the Sox played afield in the run to the championship.

While Charlie Stevens, of the St. Louis Browns, topped the first baseman with a mark of .995 for 120 games, York finished only one point behind in playing the full schedule and led the league in most chances, 1,451 and in most assists, 116.

Doerr handled the most putouts and most assists among second basemen for a total of 916 chances with only 13 errors for an average of .986. He also participated in most double plays, 129.

Lou Boudreau, of Cleveland, topped the shortstops with 742 chances, only 22 errors and an average of .970, while George Kell, of Detroit, led the third basemen. He made only seven errors in a top total of 415 chances to finish with an average of .983, or a point behind the league record established by Willie Kamm in 1933.

Walter Judnich, of the St. Louis Browns, handled 417 chances and made only two errors to field at a .995 gait for leadership among outfielders.

Warren Rosar, of Philadelphia, broke the major league record for highest fielding percentage among catchers by playing through 117 games without an error.

He also had nine errorless games left over from the previous season for a streak of 126 in a row, another record, and during that stretch he set a mark of 648 consecutive errorless chances.

Help save Gas!

"AYE, NEIGHBOR — it's a wise household that saves gas today! You might think the little bit you can save doesn't count — but collectively, it can mean much when the demand is great. Let's economize now and HOPE there'll be enough gas for those many cold days ahead."

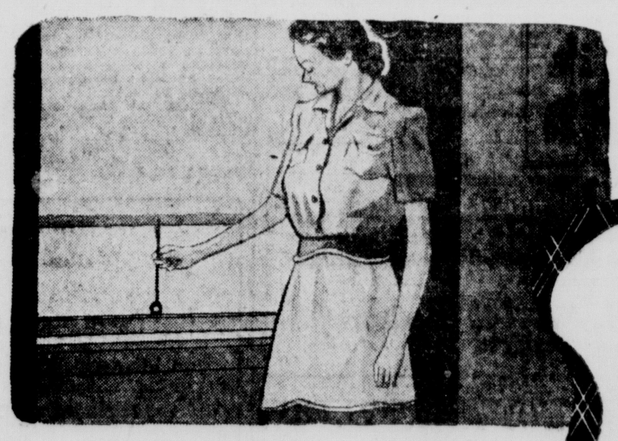

Your kitchen gas range is designed for thrifty cooking — but not for house heating. It's never a good idea to use top burners and oven for this purpose. See that gas is turned off as soon as cooking is completed.

Use radiant heaters only when necessary. Avoid using them for supplementary heating - - - and never let them burn over night!

Close bedroom doors at night and see that registers are closed. Close off unused rooms and place a rug in front of door. These thrifty suggestions will really save gas!

Lowering blinds below window sills at night will help keep out cold air. See that all windows and doors are sealed securely. Let's keep the heat in and the cold air out!

At Roll and Bowl the Tigers will be facing one of the best teams they have met this season. The Blue Lions hold a win over Hillsboro and lost by only four points to Chillicothe last week in a slow 20-16 contest.

Coach Daugherty is still uncertain on a starting lineup and will announce his starters at game time Friday. Regulars who have been getting into games so far will be used, with starting positions depending on what the boys show in pre-game warmups.

Reserve teams of the two schools meet at 7:15 p. m. with the varsity contest slated to follow immediately.

PHIL GORDON IS HIGH SCORER IN BOWLING LEAGUE

Phil Gordon scored a 237 game and 563 high series in the Wednesday night bowling league at Roll and Bowl.

Gordon Auto Parts won three games from Kiwanis No. 1; Jaycees took two from John Deere; Elks won twice over Crites Oil; Ford grabbed two from Isaly's; Rotary blanked American Legion and Kiwanis No. 2 won three games by forfeit from Post Office.

PROS WIN OVER KOMEDY KINGS

Blue Ribbon Defeats Allen's Pharmacy Team In Prelim Of Pro Card Here

A small crowd saw Columbus Pros win 43-34 over the Komedy Kings Wednesday night in Roll and Bowl.

Blue Ribbon won over Chillicothe Allen's Pharmacy in an interesting preliminary by a score of 50-41.

"Circus Eddie" Hamman put on an interesting show before and during the pro game. His antics as he went through pepper practice and other stunts pleased the crowd.

In the game itself "Squint" Phares led the scoring with 18 points. Copeland had 15 for the "Kings".

Blue Ribbon trailed until the third period in the prelim. The visitors were on top 14-13 the first quarter, 24-23 at the half. Blue Ribbon led 36-34 at the end of three quarters and "turned" on the last period.

Leon Sims led Blue Ribbon with 14 points. Harold Stout had 17 for Chillicothe.

Warships were not classified to carry out particular functions in battles until the second half of the 17th century. Before that time naval ships of all types and sizes took part in the action at the same time indiscriminately or when the most suitable opportunity was afforded.

DEMPSEY RATES SHEPPARD NEXT TO JOE LOUIS

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—A proposed heavyweight title fight next Summer at Baltimore between champion Joe Louis and Curtis Sheppard received a nod from Jack Dempsey today when he ranked Sheppard just behind Louis in his annual ratings.

Dempsey, who is said to have slightly more than a rooting interest in Sheppard, picked the so-called Baltimore hatchet man ahead of Joey Maxim, Billy Conn, Elmer Ray, Joe Baksi, Tami Mauriello, Jersey Joe Wolcott, Pat Valentino, Bruce Woodcock and Lee Q. Murray in that order.

A delegation from Baltimore called upon Mike Jacobs shortly before the promoter was taken ill recently and received assurances that efforts would be made to close a fight between Louis and the Baltimore negro.

Dempsey's ratings, appearing in the current issue of Ringside Reporter, New York boxing publication, covered all divisions and in general ran true to the ratings of other experts.

RED SOX TOP FIELDERS IN AL

Rudy York and Bobby Doerr Set Pace For Champions Of Junior Loop

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—You'd never suspect it from the way the club went to pieces against the St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series, but the Boston Red Sox led the American League in fielding last season.

The veteran Rudy York at first base and Bobby Doerr at second set the pace at their positions as the Sox compiled a team average of .977 to top New York and Cleveland by two points.

The American League record for all teams through an entire season also was equalled during the past season with an overall mark of .973.

Boston's pitching and power overshadowed its fielding in the headlines as the club spread-eagled the field in the pennant races, but release of the official figures today show the vital part York, Doerr and the rest of the Sox played afield in the run to the championship.

While Charlie Stevens, of the St. Louis Browns, topped the first baseman with a mark of .995 for 120 games, York finished only one point behind in playing the full schedule and led the league in most chances, 1,451 and in most assists, 116.

Doerr handled the most putouts and most assists among second basemen for a total of 916 chances with only 13 errors for an average of .986. He also participated in most double plays, 129.

Lou Boudreau, of Cleveland, topped the shortstops with 742 chances, only 22 errors and an average of .970, while George Kell, of Detroit, led the third basemen. He made only seven errors in a top total of 415 chances to finish with an average of .983, or a point behind the league record established by Willie Kamm in 1933.

Walter Judnich, of the St. Louis Browns, handled 417 chances and made only two errors to field at a .995 gait for leadership among outfielders.

Warren Rosar, of Philadelphia, broke the major league record for highest fielding percentage among catchers by playing through 117 games without an error.

He also had nine errorless games left over from the previous season for a streak of 126 in a row, another record, and during that stretch he set a mark of 648 consecutive errorless chances.

Help save Gas!

"AYE, NEIGHBOR — it's a wise household that saves gas today! You might think the little bit you can save doesn't count — but collectively, it can mean much when the demand is great. Let's economize now and HOPE there'll be enough gas for those many cold days ahead."

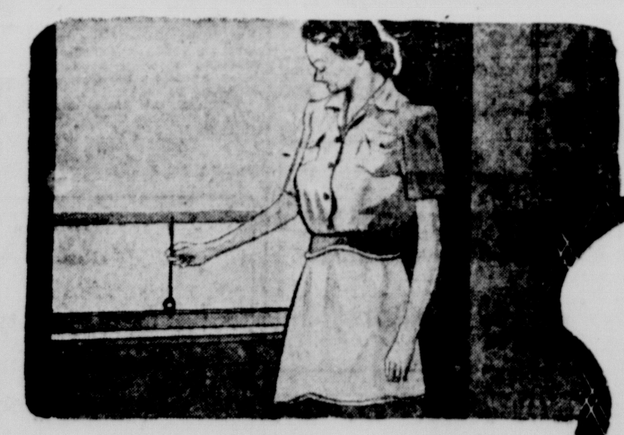

Your kitchen gas range is designed for thrifty cooking — but not for house heating. It's never a good idea to use top burners and oven for this purpose. See that gas is turned off as soon as cooking is completed.

Use radiant heaters only when necessary. Avoid using them for supplementary heating - - - and never let them burn over night!

Close bedroom doors at night and see that registers are closed. Close off unused rooms and place a rug in front of door. These thrifty suggestions will really save gas!

Lowering blinds below window sills at night will help keep out cold air. See that all windows and doors are sealed securely. Let's keep the heat in and the cold air out!

TWO-WAY RADIO WILL BE USED ON SNOW PLOWS

State Moves To Speed Up Clearance Of Roads In Ashtabula County

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 19—State snow plows and trucks in Ashtabula county will be equipped with two-way radio telephones shortly as part of a program to expedite clearance of roads after bad storms in Ohio's "snow belt."

Assistant State Highway Director Edison Ellis disclosed today that the radio equipment will be installed as soon as it is delivered by the Galvin Manufacturing company of Chicago.

The Chicago concern was second low bidder on the project, Ellis said. Galvin estimated it could supply the equipment for $12,025, and promised delivery within 20 days. The state's estimate was $14,000.

The equipment purchased by the state includes 18 mobile FM transmitter-receiver sets; two 50 watt main station FM transmitter-receiver units, two remote control units; two main station antenna, and transmission line.

Ellis said the radio sets would be used on a test basis. The network will begin operation as soon as the FCC license is issued. State highway patrol members, who already are familiar with radio operation, will install the new system and help with its maintenance.

The assistant director added that several states have been using such radio equipment for the supervision of road maintenance and all reports indicate its use speeds up highway work, particularly in the Winter months.

If the Ashtabula test substantiates the out-of-state reports, similar radio equipment will be put in service in additional snow-bothered counties.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

troops abroad, and Bevin announced Britain has less than 1 million at home and abroad, while Russia has not been penetrated on this point at all. Indeed she opposed adoption of the clause to reveal home armies, showing bodly she did not wish to be opened at home on the question of disarmament, but was interested in disarming the rest of the world. That opposed provision was nevertheless adopted. Ther will come the rub. Byrnes, no doubt, believes he can penetrate the isolation of Russia and ascertain her home armies. Russia does not think so, obviously—and in the end this matter will be up to the security council upon Which Russia wields her greatest world power.

Thus instead of Russia coming forward genuinely, or with equal generosity (no more), she has secured adoption of a resolution which she could use to extend her revoltion throughout the world.

But she has contrived a larger hole even than any of these. If the atomic bomb is prohibited immediately and the disarmament is thrown into future negotiations of the security council—as the program specifies—the United States will be disarmed of its superior weapon before anyone else disarms, if ever. This action by the atomic commission before action by the security council on general disarmament would react solely to the critical disadvantage of the United States. Thus future actions will determine the basic value of the agreements.

It is only natural then that Molotov said the New York progress steps "are as satisfactory to the Soviet delegation as they are to other delgttions." To what use he might put his opportunities for advantage, he indicated by furnishing the largest vacant spot of all in his farewell message to the United States. The translator said he wished us a good new year, thus skipping Christmas entirely, as a good atheist would. It was quite significant he said nothing about Christmas whatsoever, although the next holiday is that coming day, while the new year will not come until after.

I hope there was nothing equally significant in his new year wish, which he rendered in the Russian words, hoping for us—"nogo godu." I hope that does not mean what is says in English.

TWO-WAY RADIO WILL BE USED ON SNOW PLOWS

State Moves To Speed Up Clearance Of Roads In Ashtabula County

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 19—State snow plows and trucks in Ashtabula county will be equipped with two-way radio telephones shortly as part of a program to expedite clearance of roads after bad storms in Ohio's "snow belt."

Assistant State Highway Director Edison Ellis disclosed today that the radio equipment will be installed as soon as it is delivered by the Galvin Manufacturing company of Chicago.

The Chicago concern was second low bidder on the project, Ellis said. Galvin estimated it could supply the equipment for $12,025, and promised delivery within 20 days. The state's estimate was $14,000.

The equipment purchased by the state includes 18 mobile FM transmitter-receiver sets; two 50 watt main station FM transmitter-receiver units, two remote control units; two main station antenna, and transmission line.

Ellis said the radio sets would be used on a test basis. The network will begin operation as soon as the FCC license is issued. State highway patrol members, who already are familiar with radio operation, will install the new system and help with its maintenance.

The assistant director added that several states have been using such radio equipment for the supervision of road maintenance and all reports indicate its use speeds up highway work, particularly in the Winter months.

If the Ashtabula test substantiates the out-of-state reports, similar radio equipment will be put in service in additional snow-bothered counties.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

troops abroad, and Bevin announced Britain has less than 1 million at home and abroad, while Russia has not been penetrated on this point at all. Indeed she opposed adoption of the clause to reveal home armies, showing bodly she did not wish to be opened at home on the question of disarmament, but was interested in disarming the rest of the world. That opposed provision was nevertheless adopted. Ther will come the rub. Byrnes, no doubt, believes he can penetrate the isolation of Russia and ascertain her home armies. Russia does not think so, obviously—and in the end this matter will be up to the security council upon Which Russia wields her greatest world power.

Thus instead of Russia coming forward genuinely, or with equal generosity (no more), she has secured adoption of a resolution which she could use to extend her revoltion throughout the world.

But she has contrived a larger hole even than any of these. If the atomic bomb is prohibited immediately and the disarmament is thrown into future negotiations of the security council—as the program specifies—the United States will be disarmed of its superior weapon before anyone else disarms, if ever. This action by the atomic commission before action by the security council on general disarmament would react solely to the critical disadvantage of the United States. Thus future actions will determine the basic value of the agreements.

It is only natural then that Molotov said the New York progress steps "are as satisfactory to the Soviet delegation as they are to other delgttions." To what use he might put his opportunities for advantage, he indicated by furnishing the largest vacant spot of all in his farewell message to the United States. The translator said he wished us a good new year, thus skipping Christmas entirely, as a good atheist would. It was quite significant he said nothing about Christmas whatsoever, although the next holiday is that coming day, while the new year will not come until after.

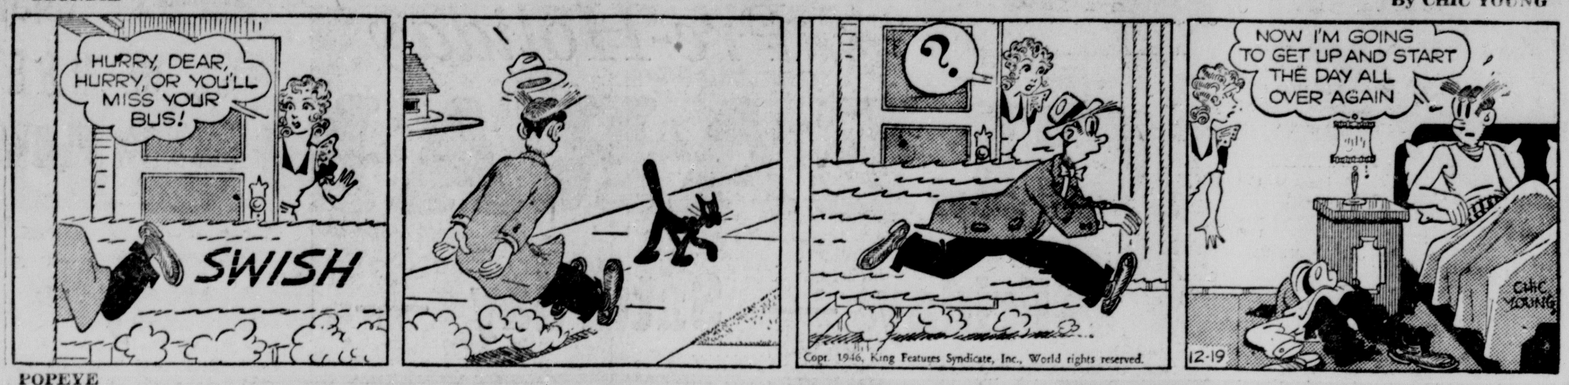

I hope there was nothing equally significant in his new year wish, which he rendered in the Russian words, hoping for us—"nogo godu." I hope that does not mean what is says in English.

Words of Wisdom

The recognition of sin is the beginning of salvation.—Luther.

Hints on Etiquette

A man should usually introduce his wife to his secretary when she visits his office. The correct thing for the secretary to do is to rise, acknowledge the introduction graciously, and then leave the room so that husband and wife may talk in private.

Today's Horoscope

If you are celebrating a birthday anniversary today, you are ambitious, capable, thrifty and make the most of what you have. You will be successful. You are artistic, always appear to good advantage, and endeavor to make your home more attractive. You are kind, loving, genial and have hosts of friends. The aspect at this time presents the opportunity to express thoughts you have kept secret. Don't wait for fate to step in to grant your wishes; go after the thing you have in mind. Friendly help from an unexpected quarter is liable to be offered to you today; be grateful. Amicable relations still ride high as the day progresses. Make the most of your opportunities. If you are setting up the Christmas tree, be careful of the wiring or candles. Show the true spirit of neighborliness; it will be repaid in kind to you. Hold fast to the holiday spirit of friendship, and make it really last. Do your budgeting for the coming season, which is usually a burdensome job, but will not be now.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. King John affixed his seal to the charter, but did not sign it, probably because he could not write.
2. Yes; he was Gen. Samuel Browne of the British Army, who lost his left arm in battle and invented a belt to aid in supporting his saber.
3. Daniel Webster was not the compiler of the famous dictionary; his brother Noah was.

TREASURE HOUR

The two Metropolitan Opera stars, lyric soprano Licia Albanese and baritone Francesco Valentino, regular soloists of the "Treasure Hour Of Song" series in previous seasons, will return for guest appearance as they join conductor Alfredo Antonini, the orchestra and chorus in a program with the accent on the Yuletide season, Thursday (9:30-10 p. m., EST) over Mutual. Miss Albanese's solo selection will be the James Rogers composition, "The Star." The popular "Song of the Evening Star" from Wagner's "Tannhauser," and "The Sleigh" by Richard Kountz, will be sung by Mr. Valentino. The two stars will join in the appealing prayer ("May Angels Guard Thee") from Verdi's "La Forza Del Destino," and in a medley of familiar Christmas carols. Antonini and the orchestra will round out the program with the "Mach of the Toys" from Victor Herbert's festive "Babes in Toyland."

MUSIC HALL

Eddie Foy, comedy sensation of the successful 1945 Broadway revival of Victor Herbert's musical comedy, "The Red Mill", will occupy the spotlight as guest star on the Kraft Music Hall, Thursday, at 9 P. M. (EST) over NBC. Eddy Duchin, Edward Everett Horton, Vocalist Milena Miller, the King Cole Trio and Russ Case and his orchestra will be featured in the cast of the half-hour program.

ABBOTT AND COSTELLO

Because Lou Costello has been such a good boy in fostering the Youth Foundation, whose first home he and his pal Bud Abbott will open in several weeks, Santa Claus picks Costello as his assistant in delivering toys, in the comedy broadcast, Thursday, at 10 p. m. Bandleader Skinnay Ennis and Vocalist Marilyn Maxwell will be heard in two popular vocal selections.

DENNIS DAY SHOW

It's no contest when Dennis Day tries to enter his best girl's painting in an art show during a broadcast of the program, "A Day In the Life of Dennis Day," over NBC Thursday at 7:30 p. m. EST. The trouble starts when Dennis blunders and delivers the painting too late. A Russian artist, who is supervising the show, says he won't accept the picture for two reasons: 1) it is bad; 2) it is late. Mildred Anderson persuades Dennis to try to fix everything up by sending the Russian on a wild errand and then impersonating him. Dennis does, and Mildred winds up getting a prize, but not the first prize she has her heart set on.

DICK HAYMES SHOW

Singer Dick Haymes jumps feet-first into the Christmas season Thursday, when his entire half-hour show will be devoted to Santa Claus, caroling, and a special pre-shrunk operetta dedicated to children. (9 p. m. EST over CBS). The operetta will tell the story of Christmas as seen through the eyes of a child. Part narrative and part ballad, it's made up of flash-backs to The Baritone's own childhood.

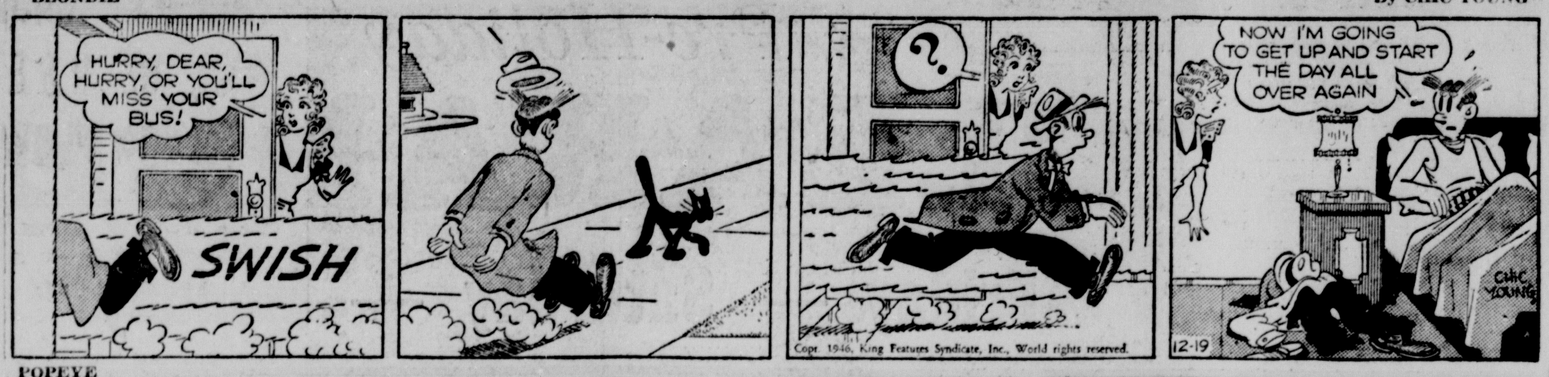

NEW ADVENTURE SERIES

Adventure dressed in its finest clothes, right out of the swash-buckling days of the cloak and sword era, will be recreated in dramatic form as the fabulous escapades of the "Count Of Monte Cristo" make their debut over the Mutual Network in a new weekly series starting Thursday, (8:30-9 p. m., EST). Carleton Young, popular motion picture actor, stars in the role of the count, who dwells in the Paris of post-Napoleonic days. Each dramatic episode is complete in itself and concerns the reprisals the count wreaks upon his personal enemies, much to the benefit of his fellow Parisians who were caught in the intrigues of the era. Ann Stone is heard in the role of "Marie Duchene," co-conspirator of the hero, who is usually up to her pretty ears in adventure.

FINNEGAN PLAYS SANTA

Finnegan, starring Frank McHugh, is overcome by the Christmas spirit during the "That's Finnegan" broadcast, Thursday, at 10:30 p. m., and he gets an undependable friend a job as a department store Santa Claus. The situation is complicated by Finnegan's having to don the whiskers himself when his friend fails to show up.

Junior Can Get New Houses And Automobiles At Circleville Stores

Christmas is only four shopping days ahead and Circleville stores Thursday were in readiness for the rush of gift-hunters.

For the convenience of Yuletide shoppers most stores will remain open until 9 p. m. on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Monday. The stores will close, however, at the regular 5:30 p. m. closing hour Tuesday, Christmas Eve.

Parents as well as children are getting a big wallop from this season's toy displays in the stores.

A lot of things adults are unable to obtain because of postwar scarcities are obtainable in miniature for boys and girls. These include new houses, new automobiles, household appliances of all kinds.

In the toylands in Circlevile stores there is a postwar abundance for junior in items that his parents would like to have life-size. Junior can throw a new house or apartment together before his parents can get the plans on paper. He can roll a shiny new automobile into the garage without taking the dealer out to dinner.

An outstanding feature of this season's toys is the decided swing away from war coupled with the use of more metal in the making of the playthings in place of the wood, pressed paper, and plastic of wartime Christmas toys.

Toys generally are priced higher than a year ago but this is merely a reflection of the general increase in the prices of other commodities. Anyways the toys are being snapped up, regardless of price, and the biggest demand is for those playthings which were either unobtainable or extremely hard to get during the war.

These include miniature automobiles and many other playthings made of steel and other metal.

Toy tanks, guns, and other wartime items are steadily decreasing in popularity, dealers explained. It seems that junior has about quit playing war and has reverted to cops and robbers. There is a heavy demand for cowboy outfits and cops. The toys run the gamut through every phase of home-making, building and road construction, transportation science, agriculture, fashion, and art.

Dolls, although still in short supply, offer greater variety than at any time in the past four years. Prices, however, are steep.
